Astronauts' Dinner: A Massive 'Love-In'

By MARY SCHURZ

NEW YORK (AP) — A formal state dinner turned into a "love-in" Friday night as New Yorkers poured affection on the nation's most heroic voyagers—Astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders.

Security guards in the Waldorf-Astoria grand ballroom were powerless to hold back the swell of hundreds of formally attired guests seeking autographs from the men who were first to circle the moon.

For nearly an hour, the guests took pictures, and handed dinner menus up over the dais to the astronauts who obliged their admirers as rapidly as they could. Each time the guards passed through all that had been signed, more were passed over their heads.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller pleaded with his guests:

"Ladies and gentlemen, this started out as a state dinner and is ending up a love-in. Will you please take your seats!"

Astronaut James A. Lovell Jr., a Navy captain, later told the guests he would leave the dinner "slightly incapacitated. With my left hand I will not be able to write. With my right hand I will not be able to shake hands."

The rapport in the ballroom broadened as the astronauts answered questions posed by the guests at the invitation of the governor.

Three rocket engines must fire perfectly, one of them several times, for the moon landing crew to return to earth safely. Story on page 12.

"General Borman," led off one guest, "do you believe the moon is worth investing in?"

To be sure Air Force Col. Frank Borman did. "In the quest for knowledge, using the moon as a goal, I feel it is like life insurance—it's mandatory."

On the subject of how the astronauts kept from floating around their spaceship like their toothbrushes, Air Force Lt. Col. William A. Anders told the crowd how "man and zero gravity seemed to go well together."

His teammate, Lovell, was more down to earth. "We hung on," he said.

Lovell promised that "somehow, somewhere, some way," women, too would soar into space—"and we're going to Mars for more than 440 days."

The women who waited on earth for their men as they orbited the moon on Christmas Eve scarcely took their eyes off them during the evening.

For their "courage, determination, and love...an inspiration to all of us," Gov. Rockefeller had a little surprise.

Susan Borman's eyes grew large and her hand rose to her mouth as the governor presented her, Marilyn Lovell and Valerie Anders each with a stunning Steuben crystal semicircular disc, depicting the heavens and earth as seen from the moon's surface.

"That is so beautiful!" she said, shaking her head.

For everyone, it had been an emotion-packed and poignant evening, capping a day of tribute by the city and state to the astronauts — including a big ticker tape parade and a United Nations' welcome.

Mrs. Lovell offered her thanks. "Please understand when I say, this is a small, warm town. This is not a big city."

Six Yanks Killed By Viet Guerrillas

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI) — Two Viet Cong guerrillas today caught a nine-man American patrol asleep in a bamboo hut, killing six and wounding two, military sources reported. The ninth victim, a South Vietnamese scout, also was killed in the ambush.

An Army officer told UPI

Correspondent David Lamb, "The guard may have made a practice of goofing off in the hut. The Viet Cong could have watched them establish this pattern night after night and were waking."

The destruction of the patrol 37 miles southwest of Saigon came as guerrilla units across the country launched at least 30 mortar or rocket attacks against allied bases and towns, mostly in the Mekong Delta.

It marked the heaviest wave of Viet Cong shelling since the Nov. 1 halt to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam. But all the attacks ended by dawn. There were no followup assaults to indicate they were part of a general offensive.

The sources told Lamb the patrol had left a U.S. infantry base 37 miles southwest of Saigon to set up an ambush to snare guerrillas. Instead the patrol went to sleep in the hut 300 yards from the base.

According to the sources, two Viet Cong burst into the hut and sprayed the sleepers with AK47 automatic rifle fire. The seven dead include a South Vietnamese scout. The two wounded GIs were reported in "serious" condition.

Following the shooting, the guerrillas burned the bamboo structure and fled through a small farming hamlet.

Two hours earlier the patrol's base camp had been hit by about 65 rounds of Viet Cong mortar and recoilless rifle fire. The base helicopter pad took the heaviest shelling. There eight Americans suffered wounds and four helicopters were damaged, sources said.

In the nationwide shelling, military spokesmen said first reports showed at least 17 persons killed and more than 160 others wounded. Most of the casualties were South Vietnamese.

The attacks followed 588 raids by U.S. planes Friday against Communist strongholds in South Vietnam. Thailand-based U.S. aircraft hit the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos, the Communists' supply route from North Vietnam.

U.S. spokesmen reported the loss of two helicopters, bringing to 980 the number lost in South Vietnam. A Marine CH46 crashed Friday 350 miles above Saigon, wounding 11 Leathernecks. Cause of the crash was unknown as yet. A smaller craft, an Army OH6 observation chopper, was downed by guerrilla gunfire 60 miles northwest of Saigon Thursday. The OH6 crewmen were uninjured.

In Saigon, U.S. State Department spokesmen said that almost 13 million of South Vietnam's 17 million citizens now live in areas considered "relatively secure" from Viet Cong attack.

The report said Allied control was extended last month over an additional 537,000 persons, increasing to 76.3 percent of the population—the highest figure ever reported—the persons now protected from the Communists.

Ave Leaves Soon

PARIS (UPI) — Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the chief of the American delegation to the Paris Vietnam talks, will leave his post Jan. 19, the day before Richard M. Nixon officially becomes President, it was announced today.

U.S. officials said Harriman's departure would come before the arrival of his successor, Henry Cabot Lodge. Lodge will run into a Hanoi team greatly strengthened today by Sweden's recognition of the North Vietnam government.

Lodge, named by Nixon to succeed Harriman, is expected to leave his post as ambassador in Bonn Tuesday to return to Washington where he faces a Senate hearing on his confirmation as the new head of the American delegation in Paris.

U.S. officials pointed out that Harriman's departure was in accordance to State Department protocol that officials normally abandon their posts before the arrival of their successors.

Harriman, a former governor of New York State, has announced plans to retire in Washington, D.C., on his return to the United States.

Harriman is expected to meet with Lodge in Washington to discuss the stalemate negotiations he has been conducting with North Vietnam since May 13.

The announcement of Harriman's return came as U.S. officials admitted the present negotiations are in a "deep freeze" pending either a change of position by Hanoi or Saigon, which has refused to enter four-sided peace negotiations.

Diplomatic sources said the Swedish move may soon be followed by other capitals in Scandinavia and possibly elsewhere. There was speculation Stockholm had discreetly tipped off its Scandinavian neighbors before becoming the first major Western nation to recognize Hanoi.

New Teen Column Begins on Monday

It's countdown time at the many problems that puzzle Daily Freeman with only two today's teenagers. Individual responses will be handled in a newspaper's newest column, Teen Forum will make the teen scene on Mon. Jan. 13.

Devoted to young adults, the column which is authored by Jean Adams, a noted authority on youths' subjects, will offer discussions and solutions to for ranging from "going steady" to "Choosing a career," or "overweight problems" to "long hair for boys."

Using her vast knowledge about teen topics and possessing a special rapport with today's youth, Jean Adams tackles their problems in a manner that gains their respect and confidence, yet in a way whereby they get the message.

By WALTER R. MEARS

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon has settled for the foreseeable future an internal debate over the leadership of the Republican National Committee by asking Ray C. Bliss to remain its chairman.

No specific period was disclosed and Bliss would not discuss the question of how long he might continue. But a key political aide to the President-elect says Nixon's request means Bliss will remain in the party post for "a substantial period" unless he decides to leave.

Nixon is known to have considered replacing Bliss with a chairman more talented in public political salesmanship.

Some men among Nixon's circle of advisers had advocated this course.

A possible compromise also had been considered, that of assigning a new party spokesman to work with Bliss at the national committee. One man who had been under consideration for that role was Bud Wilkinson, the television sportscaster who has been named a special White House consultant.

But that idea is now said to have been dropped.

Bliss, 61, has been chairman since April 1, 1965. His field is organization politics—the technical side—and he shuns the public speaking, banquet circuit approach.

His constituency is among organization Republicans, state and national committeemen, for example, and their support is believed to have been a factor in the decision to have him re-

Complete Satisfaction
Bliss spent about two hours with Nixon Friday. "He expressed complete satisfaction with the job being done by me as Republican national chairman," Bliss said.

In the view of some Nixon associates, the retention of Bliss means that activities by the Republican senatorial and congressional campaign committees will be upgraded. There is talk of their being given research assistance from the White House as well as the assignment of top administration officials to campaign for individual candidates in tough races.

Nixon has fixed the goal of regaining party control of the Senate in 1970. Twenty-five Democratic seats will be at stake then and many are regarded as vulnerable. For that reason, Republican leaders hope they can upset the Democrats' present 57-42 majority.

Democratic seats up for grabs next year include those now filled by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn. McCarthy has said he won't run as a Democrat again and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey could wind up contesting for his seat.

Not Optimistic
Even Republicans are not optimistic about beating Kennedy, the Senate's new Democratic whip, or Muskie, the 1968 vice presidential nominee. Both will have to win re-election to survive as contenders for the 1972 presidential nomination.

Republicans hope also to make gains in the House. But their experience in last November's election does not encourage them to believe they can wrest House control from the Democrats short of some political upheaval favoring them.

Nixon's Cabinet appointees continue today a round of conferences with task forces which have studied problems facing the new administration.

Cabinet members on transportation, fiscal policy, housing and urban renewal, inflation and other issues.

A key meeting was due late in the day for Secretary of the Treasury-designate David M. Kennedy to receive the findings of a task force on tax legislation.

A vital topic there is that of the 10 per cent income surtax, due to expire June 30 unless it is renewed by Congress.

Confidential Report
Nixon already has a summary of the task force recommendations, but it, like all the other reports, is being kept confidential.

Press aide Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon has not communicated with President Johnson on the surtax question but refused otherwise to discuss the matter.

Nixon has not been participating in the task force meetings, leaving that to his Cabinet officers. Tonight, the President-elect will address a dinner for Cabinet appointees and task force members.

Nixon Apt to Follow Ecumenical Course

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

President-elect Richard M. Nixon is likely to be as ecumenical in his churchgoing as his peripatetic predecessor, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Before LBJ came along, it was customary for U.S. presidents to have favorite Washington churches which they attended more or less regularly.

John F. Kennedy liked to go to Mass at Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown. Washington's oldest Roman Catholic parish.

Dwight D. Eisenhower could be seen nearly every Sunday at National Presbyterian Church. Harry S. Truman attended First Baptist Church, a brisk 10-minute walk from the White House.

Franklin D. Roosevelt worshipped at St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Herbert Hoover went to the Friends Meeting House, which he helped to organize.

Lyndon Johnson, however, proved to be a totally unpredictable churchgoer. Some Sundays he would attend services at the National City Christian Church. But he was just as likely to show up at a Roman Catholic, Lutheran or Episcopal Church.

Nixon is a "Birthright Quaker," which means he has been a member of the Religious Society of Friends since birth. He is still a member in good standing of the East Whittier Friends meeting in his home town of Whittier, Calif., and intimates say he plans to retain that affiliation after he enters the White House.

But Nixon has never been narrowly denominational in his churchgoing. In fact, during the eight years he served as vice president, he rarely attended Quaker Services. He usually went with his wife and children to Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, near the Nixon home in the Spring Valley section of northwest Washington.

When the Nixons moved to New York, they started going to Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's famous Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Avenue. Their close ties to this church were made evident when daughter Julie chose it as the site of her marriage to David Eisenhower.

Informed sources say that Nixon may attend a special pre-inaugural service at Marble Collegiate Church on Jan. 19, just before he leaves for Washington and his swearing-in.

In reply to questions submitted by UPI, Nixon's press spokesman Ron Ziegler said the president-elect had not settled on one Washington church for regular attendance.

Ziegler said Nixon feels at home in a wide variety of Protestant Churches, "and also on occasion attends Catholic Churches and synagogues."

Other informants said Nixon was being urged by the secret service to keep his churchgoing somewhat unpredictable as to time and place.

The grim fact is that going to church exposes a president to greater risk of assassination than almost any other public act which he performs regularly. For upwards of an hour, the chief executive is sitting, standing or kneeling in the midst of a large crowd of people who cannot be screened in advance.

The risk is greatest when a potential assassin can count on the President occupying the same pew in the same church at the same hour each Sunday. It can be minimized by doing what Johnson did—creating so much uncertainty about his churchgoing that no one ever knew in advance where he might pop up of a Sunday morning.

Thus Nixon has a strong practical reason for following LBJ's example.

If Nixon fails to become identified with any particular

Washington church, who'll function as "the president's pastor?"

Interfaith Group To Talk on Twain

The cynicism of Mark Twain on the failures of organized religion in America will be discussed by the Red Hook Ministerium at St. Joseph's, Barrytown, Wednesday, Jan. 15 from 8 to 10 p.m. This is the ninth of ten inter-faith discussions planned to meet educational needs of Christian adults in the area. These meetings are always open to the public.

Wednesday's program will feature comments on taped excerpts from last Thursday's TV show "Hal Holbrook's Mark Twain Tonight" by Rev. Roger Leonard, Rev. Hugh Devers, Rev. Russell Sargent and possibly Rev. William Feickert. Open floor discussion and refreshments will follow.

The ultimate concern of the evening's discussion is to evaluate how Christians can presently think of the continuing separation as many churches of the one Christ against the needling remarks of Twain, which so typify the skepticism of large numbers of young people today with the things of organized religion.

Six Families Flee From Apartment Fire

HIGHLAND — Six families fled from their homes in sub-freezing weather shortly before 3:45 p.m. Friday, after fire was discovered in the kitchen of a third floor apartment in a 3½ story frame apartment house on Clearwater Road.

Fire Chief Joseph Valentino, who was in command of 47 volunteers from the local fire companies, and a crew of men from Milton Engine Company, said the fire spread through two apartments on the top floor of the building owned by Michael W. Welch of Clearwater Road.

Occupants of the apartments evacuated the apartments without incident.

Chief Valentino reported that Fireman Robert Palmatier of the Highland Hose Company, received lacerations of the left hand while assisting at the blaze that kept firemen at the scene more than three hours. Heavy water and smoke damage was reported in other parts of the house.

The origin of the fire was not immediately determined. Chief Valentino said he would return to the scene of the fire today in an effort to find the cause of the blaze.

Firemen were hampered as they faced the hazardous task of climbing ladders that were coated with ice. Hose lines also were blanketed with ice.

During the height of the blaze,

People Against New Phone Plan In Poughkeepsie

Congressman Hamilton Fish has announced that 70 persons have been in contact with his Poughkeepsie office regarding the proposed N. Y. Telephone Company's plan to extend the company's toll-free dialing area which will result in rate increases to business and private phones.

Fish said the majority of those contacting him were against the proposal.

The new congressman said his office at 70 Market Street, Poughkeepsie is where people may write to convey their feelings concerning the telephone company's plan.

Fish said he would have a representative at the Public Service Commission hearing to state the views of those who cannot attend the hearing themselves.

Man Injured, Car Hits Tree

SHOKAN — While driving his car south on the Ashokan Dam Road at 4 a. m. today, Donald E. Koepfen, 40, of R.D. 3, Kingston, was injured when the vehicle went off the pavement, through a fence and struck a tree, according to Kingston state police.

Troopers reported that Koepfen was taken to Benedictine Hospital and treated for fractured ribs and contusions of the forehead. Trooper Patrick Sheehan investigated.

New Paltz firemen responded to the call and quelled the flames, according to Chief Valentino.

February 8th Last Issue of Post Magazine

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Saturday Evening Post, once read in millions of American households, will publish its last edition February 8.

Martin S. Ackerman, president of the Post, said Friday the magazine had lost $5 million last year and was destined to lose another $3 million in 1969.

He said Post subscribers would be offered subscriptions to other magazines. Negotiations were reported under way with Time, Life, True, Look, McCall's, Sports Illustrated and Mechanics Illustrated.

The glossy, big-format Post was for years one of America's most popular magazines. Ackerman blamed its demise on television but many critics felt that the nation had outlived the rural character the Post reflected.

Some 100 Post employees will lose their jobs. Ackerman said details of their severance pay will be "discussed in coming weeks."

Seven Drivers Ticketed for No Inspection

Uninspected motor vehicles are catching the eye of Kingston police and Friday seven motorists were cited to appear before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

D. 4, Box 347, Kingston.

Dennis M. Lima, 17, of Box 34, Pine Street, Tillson, was summoned for driving without a license and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

Dutchess Fire Sweeps Home

CLINTON CORNERS — Dutchess county authorities are investigating a fire that swept a 13-room frame structure on the Bar-Nothing Ranch on Pumpkin Lane in the Town of Clinton Friday afternoon.

West Clinton Fire Company assisted by Pleasant Valley volunteer fire units battled the flames for hours before the blaze was brought under control. The property is owned by Ralph and Margaret Burger.

Fire Chief Douglas Burdick of West Clinton was in command of the firefighters.

Chief Detective Charles Borchers of the sheriff's office, said the origin of the fire is under investigation. He reported the loss was estimated at upwards of $20,000.

The building had formerly been occupied as a hotel. The fire was discovered at 4:55 p.m. and firemen were at the scene about four hours.

Two dozen of the 47 Negro students at Swarthmore sat in the offices of the dean of admissions today locked in a war of nerves with the 1,024 student, Quaker-affiliated school's administration.

The Negroes vowed to stay until they are given a voice in policy making and Negro administrators and faculty are added. It was the second night members of the Swarthmore Afro-American Student Society had occupied the offices, but school officials appeared content to wait out the students.

College officials Friday criticized the protestors' lack of "rational procedure" to discuss their demands.

Five-hundred white students backed the demands of the Negro dissidents by staying away from classes, prompting a suspension of class sessions for the second day in a row.

At the 1,800-student Jewish-affiliated Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., about 65 Negro students continued their sit-in of the school's communications center. A court order demanding their eviction Friday morning was extended until after negotiations are concluded.

Want African Studies

The demands of the demonstrators, who represent the 150 Negroes enrolled at Brandeis, now center on establishment of a largely autonomous African studies department headed by a Negro. The idea has the backing of 150 of the 200 faculty members provided the sit-in is ended.

Acting president S.I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College revealed Friday he has been meeting informally with Roscoe Blount and other members of the Black Students Union in an effort to resolve disputes on the campus which has been the hallmark of the current winter discontent.

Speakers at a sanctioned rally at San Fernando Valley State College called for a boycott of classes Monday. A march that followed to the administration building lasted about 10 minutes but was peaceful in sharp contrast to a violent march the previous day that resulted in the arrest of 286 persons.

Consolidated School Board OKs Educational Objectives

Educational objectives of the elementary and secondary schools in the Kingston School District Consolidated, as presented by J. Warren Adair, associate superintendent for curriculum, have been approved by the Board of Education.

It was noted that the curricular and instructional efforts of any school system should closely follow carefully developed educational objectives and evaluation of the educational program should be done in the light of the objectives. These should be periodically reviewed and revised if education is to keep pace with the ever-changing needs of society, Dr. Adair pointed out.

Committees of the professional staff have formulated a set of proposed objectives for the Kingston City Schools and the Board of Education has reviewed the proposed objectives with representatives of the professional staff.

Four General Areas

Dr. Adair explained that the educational objectives for the elementary schools can be categorized into four general areas of learning: essential skills and abilities, school attitudes and behavior, physical, mental and emotional health and cultural and esthetic values.

The educational objectives of the secondary schools adopted on recommendation of Dr. Adair encompass four basic areas of learning: intellectual and cultural, social, personal and career.

Dr. Adair also has informed the Board of Education that elementary and junior high schools will be closed Jan. 28 to allow teachers to attend inservice workshop programs, one for teachers of grades K-2 and the other for teachers of grades 3-9.

Educational Communications will be the topic for the Jan. 28 workshop program at the J. Watson Bailey School, which starts at 9 a. m. William C. Flannigan, associate of the Bureau of Educational Communications, New York State Education Department, will speak on the topic, Don't Verbalize-Visualize.

At 10 a. m. Dr. Irene Cypher, professor of education, Communications Art Group, New York University, will speak on Multi-Media Approach to Learning, and at 1:30 p. m. Raymond W. Graf, supervisor of education, New York State Education Department, will speak on Increased Availability of Instructional Materials Through Video Recording.

School District Trying to Get Own Sales Levy

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — The Oneonta City school district is seeking state action to allow the levying of a local personal income tax on residents within the district.

Currently New York City is the only municipality in the state allowed to levy its own income tax.

The change being sought would either require a new law or an amendment to the present law affecting New York City.

On Dec. 12 voters in the district turned down a proposition to increase the local tax limit and the Otsego County Board of supervisors has not yet acted on a school board request for a county sales tax.

Local officials say they hope for support for the measure from the State Teachers Association, the State School Boards Association and the Association of City District Supervisors.

Kingston Indians Promote 4, Plan Expansion

Ralph Shapiro, director of the Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps, announced today the appointment of John Sottile as drum major.

John, who served as assistant drum major from December, 1967 until his promotion, joined the Corps as a spear bearer in the color guard in 1964, and became a bannerman in 1966. Always driving to do his best, and willingness to put the betterment of the Corps ahead of his personal ambitions, he was given the opportunity to try out for the position of assistant major. His sincere effort and positive attitude convinced the administration that of all applicants, he was the most qualified for this office of responsibility.

Drum Major Sottile was chosen upon the retirement of Charles Buboltz, because of his constant devotion to his duties. Buboltz resigned this number one position as he will be starting college in July, which traveling with the Indians, he likes to work out on his drums. He resides at 377 Washington Avenue with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sottile.

Since the end of last year's drum corps season, 15 new members have been added to the ranks of this Corps of young men between the ages of 14 and 21. Additional new members will receive a warm welcome, as this unit wishes to become bigger and stronger.

The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps in the process of expanding its ranks since the conclusion of last year's marching and maneuvering season, have assigned three of its 15 new members to regular positions.

Glenn Dickson joined the Indians in October 1968 as an experienced drummer, and has already appeared in three parades with the Corps as an alternate in the drum section.

In addition to making most regular rehearsals, he has attended all of the special drum classes for new members, and

this week has been elevated to the position of tenor drummer in the 1969 drum line. Glenn, son of Mrs. Lillian Dickson, of 44 Wood Street, Kingston, has been a member of the MJM

Band for more than two years, and has played in various rock and roll groups.

Daniel Wenderoth, son of Mrs. Emma Dammier of 484 Delaware Avenue, graduated into the Kingston Indians from the Troop 12 BSA Indians last October and has been advanced this week from alternate soprano bugler to third soprano in the '69 bugle section. Prior to joining the Corps, Dan had two years experience on the trumpet as a member first of the Port Ewen Elementary School Band, and later in the John F. Kennedy School Band. He is a student at the Clifford M. Miller Junior High School, enjoys ice and roller skating, and wood-working in his spare time.

Alternate bass-baritone bugler William Brandt, was also promoted this week to the position of euphonium bugler in the base line of the bugle section. Joining the Corps in November, he has been most attentive ever since, making himself a real asset to the Indians. Bill attends MJM the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brandt of 119 Hunter Street, and lists his second hobby as art. In an attempt to make the Indians more powerful as a competing Corps, they have started another recruiting drive to expand their ranks. Seeking nine more men for the horn line, boys between 14 and 20 wishing to join any section will be welcomed.

Other sections include the drum section and the color guard.

Being an 'Indian' is accepting the challenge of bringing honor to the City of Kingston, as the Indians goal is to win the state and national drum corps title within the next couple of years. The big disadvantage between the Indians and the national power corps at present, is that those corps are fielding between 85 and 140 men, while the local Corps has only 60, therefore lacking the power needed to compete on an equal basis. All equipment, instruction, and transportation is provided for by the Corps.

The Indians will be rehearsing at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium this Sunday between 2 and 4:30 p.m. on drill, and between 6 and 8:30 p.m. on music. Those interested are urged to attend an Indian rehearsal at their earliest convenience, so that they can be ready to start with the Indians at the beginning of this coming season.

Youth in the News Earn Honors and Recognition

Holidays are over and the winter term has started in earnest for high schoolers and college students alike.

One student who may be in a dream world of sorts this winter is Steve Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Bryant of Wittenberg Road, Mt. Tremper. A freshman at Defiance College, Defiance, Ohio, Steve is one of 37 students studying a special course, What Is the Significance of Dreams and ESP?

The winter term study will deal with the wide range of possibilities suggested by dreams and extra sensory perception. The group will explore the dream world through research, discussion films, guest speakers and even a seance.

There is nothing dream like about the honors which have been coming the way of two Kingston area girls who are away at school.

Deborah Stewart of Kingston rolled up scholastic honors during the fall trimester at Columbia Memorial Hospital

School of Nursing at Hudson. An average of 3.0 or better is necessary to receive honors designation and Deborah did just that in her freshman year. She is a 1968 graduate from Kingston High School.

Barbara Maynard of Port Ewen, a senior at William Smith College, was one of six students of the independent liberal arts college at Geneva elected to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Nominations were made by a vote of the junior and senior classes of the college, and the final slate of six was selected by Mrs. Mary Lou Thibeault, dean, in consultation with Mrs. Hall Cloutier, assistant dean, on the basis of the students' college records.

Miss Maynard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oakley C. Maynard of 124 East Stout Street, was graduated in 1965 from Kingston High School. At William Smith she has been active as class historian, house president and house treasurer.

She is a member of Phi Sigma Iota, the Spanish Club, and is president of the Honor Society.

Recording Secretary of Student Council, she is also the senior class representative to that body. Consistently on Dean's List, she was elected to Phi Kappa in her junior year.

Miss Maynard majors in Spanish and plans to do graduate work in Modern Languages or Economics.

Paul Impola of New Paltz Central High School has been cited as one of the outstanding high school students of English in the country. The National Council of Teachers of English has named him a 1968 national winner in its annual Achievement Awards competition.

Last spring a committee of English teachers from the high school nominated Paul to represent New Paltz High School in the competition. The nation's schools nominated almost 8,500 students for the NCTE citation. Of that number, only 800 finalists were chosen.

They represent over 600 schools from 50 states, the District of Columbia, and American Preparatory Schools abroad.

In announcing the winners, Robert F. Hogan, executive secretary of the National Council of Teachers of English, stated that the Council recommends these students for college scholarships in 1969. The names of these students are sent to every college and university admissions officer in the country. In previous years 99 per cent of the Awards winners entered the college of their choice. Approximately 80 per cent of those applying for scholarships received financial aid.

The NCTE sends to all winners and runners-up scrolls of recognition and it honors their high school English department with certificates of merit. Mrs. Lee Friedman and Harry Streifer have been Paul's English instructors at New Paltz High School. Paul's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Impola, 20 DuBois Road, New Paltz.

Jazz Artist Named to Buffalo Staff As Head of New Experimental Project

International jazz recording artist Archie Shepp has been appointed associate director of the Experimental Program for Independent Study at State University at Buffalo. Shepp will act as coordinator between administrators and students participating in the program.

EPIS was established in September by the University under the sponsorship of the Select Committee on Equal Opportunity to enhance and expand the educational opportunity of minority students in the Buffalo community and in the state. Under the program, more than 100 minority group students from the metropolitan Buffalo area have been admitted to the University through the extension of the enrollment quota for 1968-69.

In addition to his position with EPIS, Shepp will serve as Lecturer in Music and as Assistant Director of the Black Studies Program, now in the planning stage at the University.

Dr. James A. Moss, chairman of the select committee for Equal Opportunity, emphasized Shepp's unique qualifications for providing a bridge between the strong cultural ties familiar to the black students in their own community and the completely unfamiliar and predominately white environment of the university campus. "As an internationally known jazz musician," Dr. Moss noted, "Archie Shepp provides the visible presence on the campus of one of the major contributions of black people to American white culture. In addition, his restlessness, vigor and persistence in the effort to remove all artificial barriers to the individual's full expression of himself were qualities that helped determine our selection of him."

Shepp, well-known to jazz aficionados, grew up in Philadelphia and received a bachelor of arts in drama from Goddard College. Before turning to a full-time career in music, he taught in the New York City public school system, worked for the department of welfare there and became part of New York's Mobilization for Youth. Since playing with the Archie Shepp-Bill Dixon Quartet at the World Festival in Helsinki in 1962, he has been hailed as one of the most exciting avant garde saxophonists in the field. Mr. Shepp cut his first professional recording in 1962, and has appeared at several Newport Jazz Festivals.

During those years Shepp continued his vital interest in drama. The two arts merged in his jazz allegory, "Junebug Graduates Tonight," a play with music and lyrics which was produced by New York City's Chelsea Theater Center early in

Coleman High Offers Admissions and Play

Deadlines are coming up at John A. Coleman High School this week. January 15 is the final date for eighth grade students to file applications for admission to the school.

All students seeking admission to the freshman class in September, 1969, whether or not they have taken the cooperative entrance examination must file a separate application and fee.

Application forms and further information may be obtained at the high school on Hurley Avenue Extension.

Approximately 140 to 160 students will be admitted to the freshman class of 1969. This influx of freshmen will add to the present total of 396 students on all class levels. Students are from Kingston, Red Hook, Teora, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and New Paltz areas.

Incidentally, this year will see the first co-ed graduating class from the Catholic high school.

There is still time to see the Drama Club's production of Rebel Without A Cause.

The first performance was given last night at the school. The second show will be Sunday 4 p.m. The public may attend. Tickets are available at the door.

The three-act play is based on a story by Nicholas Ray and features a cast of 20.

Now Sounds Planned For School Concerts

Mrs. N. T. Hall, chairman of the committee on In-School Concerts of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society has announced four different programs being made available for concerts to the schools in Dutchess, Orange and Ulster counties for the Spring 1969 Season and the Fall-69 Spring-70 Seasons.

The announcement was made this week in a mailing to music teachers, school district music directors, principals and superintendents throughout the area.

Programs available for the Spring-69 series include: The New York Brass Sextet under the direction of Gerald Webster which features both contemporary and traditional repertoires; The Canterbury Woodwind Quintet directed by Richard Webb; Luis Garcia-Renart, guitar and cello in a program of classical and flamenco music; and The New Sound of Electronic Music, featuring Harvey Solberg in a timely and unusual program of combined live and electronic tape music.

Programs for the Fall-69 and Spring-70 series include the Luis Garcia-Renart and Now Sound of Electronic Music in addition to Strings on the Move, a program that can go right to the homeroom, the New Art Singers, featuring a survey of the development of Afro-American music as well as traditional vocal selections of a varied nature.

The concerts are all con-

HV Quiz Bowl Series Starts Meets Today

The third annual Hudson Valley High School Radio Quiz Bowl got under way today with a match between Highland and Cossack-Athens Central Schools.

The hour-long match, first in a weekly series to be aired by WGHQ and WGHQ-FM, pits four students from each school in a fast-paced quiz on a wide variety of subjects. The moderator is Gordon Kidd, director of Library Services at Ulster County Community College.

Twenty-one schools in the valley have entered the bowl competition. The elimination tournament will continue for five rounds to determine which of the schools will represent the Hudson Valley against the Westchester County champion in a Super Bowl in June.

The program, sponsored by the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, was aired live on WGHQ at 10:10 a.m. The broadcast will be repeated at 7:05 p.m. Tuesday on WGHQ-FM.

Folk Concert to Benefit Hobbit and Sloop Project

Tickets are now available in the Kingston area for the Jan. 21 Afro-American Folk Concert, featuring folk singer Pete Seeger and African drummer Olatungi with his troupe of dancers and musicians.

The concert, which will be held at Kingston's Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p.m., will be for the benefit of the Hudson River Sloop Restoration Project, Inc. and the Ulster Coffeehouse, Inc., known to its student patrons as the Hobbit.

A donation will purchase the ticket for an exciting evening of exploring the musical culture of our country, — and it will also benefit two very worthy non-profit organizations.

What Ever Happened to . . .

By LEI

If it weren't the beginning of the year, and we weren't reviewing what shook in the past year, we probably wouldn't even notice anything was missing. As it is, we keep coming upon items that had it good for weeks—or even years—and then got a one-way ticket down a greased elevator shaft. We don't refer to ancient history (Although what did happen to Freddy and the Dreamers, madras prints, and purple chewing gum?) and we'll try to keep from those overnight sensations that were bound to burn themselves out (By the way, where did Jeanie C. Riley, "Get Smart," and Twiggy go, anyway?). But that still leaves us wondering about a lot of things we thought would be around longer . . .

What ever happened to peace marches? Couldn't they confront confrontation? And what happened to the fellow who led those demonstrations back at Berkeley?

What ever happened to the Procol Harum? Yes, we know all about their physical and emotional hassles, but we all know of singers who've been dead for five years who still have unreleased records waiting in the freezer.

What ever happened to Mohammed Ali? Oh, we know he was just pardoned after serving eight days of a ten-day jail term, but we didn't think his mouth could be muffled.

What ever happened to Vidal Sassoon? And topless bathing suits?

What ever happened to (Don't laugh at the same time, now!) the Dave Clark 5? Sure, they laid down bubblegum, but some of it was bubblegum with a belt. And, speaking of bubblegum, what ever happened to the Cowells? Oh, we know about the telly series and the "Candy Kid," but from the amount of exposure they've been getting for their efforts, they could have totaled out in Indian Lake.

What ever happened to scuffy sneakers? This year everyone seemed to go from sandals to boots. We've seen more ads for Keds than we've seen sneakers.

What ever happened to Hywell Bennett? Sure, he's making another flick, but we thought he'd be a star by now. For that matter, what ever happened to Hayley Mills? We thought she'd be a Mama by now. And where did Geraldine Chaplin go after she cut her hair? And then, there used to be Sonny and Cher . . .

What happened to Galahad, king of the crash pads? Sure he turned out to be a tarnished knight, and the fuzz was 'way down on him but . . . And you don't hear very much about Tim Leary these days.

And what became of Roger Miller? Sure Bobby Russell sounds just like him, but — hey! What ever happened to Bobby Russell? And to Jerry Jeff Walker, who did such a good job on that record, "Mister Bo Jangles?" Come to think about it, what ever happened to that record, "Mister Bo Jangles?"

What ever happened to Georgie Fame? To say nothing of Bonnie and Clyde?

What became of Murray the K? He's still talking, but is anybody listening?

What became of the Monkees? Sort of see no Monkees, hear no Monkees, no Monkees, period. A year ago they won over the Beatles in popularity polls.

We all know what happened to Batman, he was gassed in a cave by the Board of Health to prevent the spread of rabies. But what happened to Chickenman?

And why does Mad suddenly seem so sane?

Jim Morrison cut his hair. You heard from him since? And Miriam Makeba married Stokely Carmichael but they must have gone to Mars for the honeymoon, that was the last we heard of either of them.

What it all amounts to, probably, is what ever happened to 1968? It makes you wonder. What will be left of the present, when the new decade comes, next year?

Hints from Heloise

Dear Gals:

Know those flimsy nylon nightgowns that have an overskirt of filmy stuff? When they wear out, don't throw one piece of it away.

Cut it off and use it in the bathtub or shower for bathing. Fantastic. And gals, does it ever scrub!

Wonderful for dish rags.

Fantastic for cleaning sinks and bathtubs. Doesn't sour or smell, because it's easily rinsed out.

So there's that nylon net again. And this time it's all free.

P. S. With the flimsy, snagged, top part cut off, you'll be surprised to find the heavy under part in excellent condition and practically a new nightgown.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

The word "etiquette" is really or reflected, will make you a French word meaning "little ticket." One explanation of how it came to its current meaning is that Louis XIV ordered his gardener to post signs or "tickets" instructing visitors to keep off the newly seeded palace lawns. When his courtiers ignored these directions, the King issued an edict commanding everyone to "keep within the 'etiquettes'" and gradually the word came to cover all the rules for proper court behavior.

Another, perhaps more likely, explanation is that the present meaning of "etiquette" started with admission tickets to French court functions. These tickets often had a set of rules for correct behavior printed on the back; for example: "Guests are reminded that they must not lick their fingers or wipe them on the bread."

Since then etiquette has come to mean many different things to many different people. Emerson called it, "A happy way of doing things... a stroke of genius or love repeated and hardened into usage." A more practical definition refers to etiquette as "The machinery of society." On the other hand, a cynical ten-year-old of an earlier generation wrote, "Etiquette is what you are doing and saying when people are looking and listening."

In his book, "The Polite Americans," Gerald Carson tells of an even younger philosopher, a nine-year-old who disclaimed his need for further knowledge of etiquette declaring, "I have good manners. I say good-night and good-morning, I say hello and good-bye, and when I see dead things lying around the house, I bury them."

Although I am intrigued by the simplicity of this approach to life, I am afraid that many of us would agree with Lord Chesterfield, when he said, "Great merit or great failings will make you respected or despised, but trifle, little attention, mere nothings either done or reflected, will make you either liked or disliked in the general run of the world." And these trifles and little attentions do involve more than burying dead things lying around your house.

The problem is that sometimes we become so concerned with the details we forget the reasons for practicing them. Then, in truth, etiquette becomes a mass of trivial and arbitrary conventions, extremely troublesome to those who practice them and insupportable to everybody else.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JANUARY 11, 1969

Abolish the College

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Rep. James J. O'Hara of Michigan felt that they had strong reasons to make the motion to object to a Presidential elector's changing his vote. Muskie is the defeated Democratic candidate for Vice President, and O'Hara is the chairman of the Democratic study group.

The vote in question was cast by Dr. Lloyd W. Bailey of Rocky Mount, N. C., for George Wallace, when he ran pledged to Richard M. Nixon. Muskie and O'Hara said they wanted to preserve the integrity of this election, to set a precedent that would go a long way toward binding future Presidential electors to support the candidate to whom they were pledged, and to prevent bargaining for votes among electors in case no candidate got a majority. They also hoped to call attention to the need for direct election of the President.

Since the founding of the nation, 16,150 electors have been chosen in Presidential elections, and only five before Dr. Bailey had voted for a candidate other than the one to whom they were pledged. Three of these occurred in the last 20 years.

The Constitution clearly states that an elector is free to vote for anyone, but, almost to a man, Congress doesn't see it that way. An amendment could spell out the legislative body's wishes that electors adhere to the sentiments of those who elect them, but as the electoral college is on its way out, it would not be worth the fights an amendment would entail.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. in calling for electoral reform states that when we think of the chaos which might have resulted had no presidential candidate received a majority of the electoral votes in 1968, the need for reform is patently urgent.

Many warnings were issued before the election of the possibility of a deadlocked Electoral College and of the electors defying their own constituency in switching votes. All of the talk pointed up the serious fallibility of the electoral system.

The nation was spared the bitter divisions and ordeal of waiting months to learn who would be the next President. That luck may not always hold out. Abolishing the college should be one of the first orders of business in the new administration.

Patriotism and Politics

The convening of Congress two weeks before the inauguration of President-elect Nixon gives the legislators time to decide how they will work with the new Chief Executive, and if they will mix patriotism with politics, or out for politics alone.

Democratic leaders of both houses indicate that for the present at least, they will work with the President for the good of the country first and of the party second.

The United States has become the symbol of power the world over and it is a target of both friend and foe. It faces trials that are as different as any it has experienced before. It will need all the wisdom and tolerance it can muster both in the legislature and executive branches.

Winding up the war in Vietnam is pretty much the wish of all Americans. Congress should be willing to allow the new President time to try his own approach to the war before starting to second guess him.

Inflation and poverty and a host of other domestic problems await his attention. These also demand wisdom and tolerance. We can't expect overnight solutions for problems that have beset the country for decades. Give the new team at the White House a chance. That is politics with patriotism, not politics for its own sake.

Tilford Gaines, economist of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust, New York, does not agree with the majority of his fellow economists that there isn't even a mini recession in sight. Gaines declares that "a classic boom and bust" pattern is emerging that will cause "a true business recession" in 1969. We report his view because he is out of step.

In the Eye of the Beholder

Henry J. Taylor Says Surprise, Wall Street Certainty

Stock market shareowners have now built themselves beyond 23 million as the new year — and the new Nixon Administration begins. That's a very heady figure — and speculations can be very heady wine.

The new administration, too, has a stake in the market. No administration in history has ever been re-elected in a bear market.

One trouble with speculation is that it's too exciting. Leading averages of stock prices have increased about three per cent a year in this century. Stocks offer wonderful opportunities to accumulate a nest egg and acquire security. There is an inadequate hedge against inflation but better than most other mediums.

However, in most families the protection of hard-earned capital in this way must be the first consideration, and the excitement can destroy this. Millions will ponder hard before they buy a car or something for the house. But they'll put their money into a stock tip all but blindly when up pop tantalizing assortments of what millions really seem to want: fast movers. These are the candle and they are the moth.

For example, at this moment just five computer stocks in the so-called optics scanning field show a market value of $675 million. All five put together had gross sales last year of only about $40 million. And that sparkling five ran up an aggregate loss of $12 million. Any market is built on a great many illusions. Emotionalism, or fashion, in stocks again and again kisses goodbye to reality.

Sometimes it takes a long time to get over the results — and some big-tipped, high-flying stocks (and the people who buy them) never do.

In 1929 the Dow-Jones industrial average reached a peak of 381. Then came the nightmarish October crash, followed by the depression. The Dow hit a bottom of 41 in 1932, the deepest it dropped into the black pit. It took 25 years for stocks to come back to the level of 1929.

World War II came and went. The inflation zoomed up like Saturn 5 and Apollo 8. We had abandoned gold convertibility. We had devalued the dollar. But not until 1954 did stock averages finally recover. At last the Dow topped 400.

Even so, the market showed that the same old unexpected quicksand always remained. In just the first six months of 1962 the market dropped $116 billion, swift and murderous as a flung knife.

On February 9, 1966 — three years ago — the market on the New York Stock Exchange nudged the mystic 1,000 in the Dow average. It closed that day (still unequalled) at 995.15. Then the egg hit the fan. The market staged one of the most horrendous drops in history. Dropping like Roscoe, the 1,200-pound diving horse at Atlantic City, the market fell a full 250 points in only six months to a low of 744 by October 7.

The next year saw Wall

Street beginning to break the volume records (since surpassed) by the biggest volume in the exchange's 175-year history. The daily business of Wall Street's biggest brokerage house often exceeded two million shares but, actually, only for of the 39 stocks used in the Dow averages reached a new high in 1967. The 1968 churning in the creamery likewise was terrific. But the market has still to recover to where it was three years ago. For, although often forgotten, there is a seller for every buyer.

The stock market usually adjusts fairly accurately to the profit outlook. Ultimately, prices respond to earnings, yields and prospects. But prices are made by supply and demand, not values. Values change if conditions change, and the market in any case is always anticipating the future, not reflecting the present.

It mirrors the hopes and fears of worldwide millions. If the worldwide millions want money or anything else more than stocks, or if uncertainty grips them, the law of supply and demand overrides everything. There is no such word as "intrinsically" in the stock market. And the one and only absolute certainty in Wall Street is the certainty of surprise.

So, once again in 1969 it will all add up to the same thing: Making money in the market is very difficult — very — over the long haul, and it is never made (for long) by those who leap before they look.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It is exactly 40 years since I was first hired by a newspaper. The paper was the Daily News, New York. My position was copy boy, $12 a week. I sat on a bench with other copy boys and we fidgeted and giggled as editors and reporters worked to draw a newsworthy first edition together.

When someone within the City Room bawled "Boy!" we hurried to his side. If he wanted tomato juice for his hangover, we dog-trotted to Suerkin's Restaurant, next door, and got it. Some asked for a pint of sauerkraut juice. It was all ays a matter of life or death.

The Sports crouched behind dusty loft buildings on Park Place. It was a noisy articulate newspaper with lots of circulation and little advertising. The big stories dismissed us with: "Only g u c h e w e r s read your paper." If this canard were true, the least we should have settled for was gum advertising.

The Sports columnist was Paul Gallico. Mark Hellinger was the Broadway columnist. There was a lopsided distinction between ranks: Capt. Medill Patterson was the publisher; the editor was Colonel House. John O'Donnell and Jack Miley and Doris Fleeson and Nick Kenny and Red Dolan were the reporters. There were others, but the eyes of memory cannot decipher them through mist.

Our stories were special. We had no interest in writing about President Herbert Hoover and his suggestions for helping the Germans to pay their war debt. Nor did we care too much (except for photos) about the German zeppelins which crossed the Atlantic, like floating cigars, at 70 miles per hour.

If a married man was in the wrong boudoir, we dispatched reporters and photographers. This was our territory. If an old gaffer like Daddy Browning married 15-year-old Peaches Browning and gave her a gander on a leash as a wedding present, the story was ours. When a blue blood like Kip Rhinelandt eloped with a girl who was part Indian and part Negro our heroes were present with 4 x 5 Graphic and enough flash powder to blow the honeymooners to their eternal reward.

On my first day, I showed up with an editorial about the appointment of Grover Whelan as police commissioner. It was entitled "A New Broom Sweeps Clean" — a marvel of subtlety which came out of my head. The city editor didn't look at it. He tossed it into a wastebasket.

In the early morning, all copy boys made "books." These were sheets of cheap yellowing copy paper with abused carbons sandwiched between. The atmosphere, all day and all night, was exciting. Harry Nichols, assistant city editor, answered the phones, took the news tips, and assigned the reporters. Teddy Dalton, fair and fat, faced him from the other side and assigned photographers.

Irene Corbally Kuhn hammered out stories on a desk splintering with age. Gang murders made good assignments, and no matter how few the clues we insisted that it was the work of the Detroit Purple Gang. The ceiling was high; the lights were coned from hanging green shades; the men's room was where bets were placed.

When the big presses began to spin at 7 p.m. the tired building was prevented from falling down by the two sturdier buildings which flanked it. The noise was like a bowel cramp deep in the earth. It ran and ran, faster and faster. Between editions Mark Hellinger taught me how to write a story. Frank Carson, day city editor, permitted me to write one paragraph fillers. I clipped every one to show my father.

There was a seasoning of insanity in everything we did. When a Harvard sophomore committed suicide, we sent a sob sister to Massachusetts — not to get the story — but to find out if he kept a diary and to steal it. Tom Cassidy would show up loaded, roll a sheet of paper into the typewriter, then place his head on the moving carriage and write the thing with his eyes closed.

Nobody ever read a book unless it was dirty. At that, it was tough slogging getting through the clean parts. James J. Walker was mayor, and when he donned pearl gray spats and a black derby, we all went out and bought them. On time, of course.

Drew Pearson Says Sen. Russell Has Been Potent Voice in U.S. Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON — The public saw a face presiding over the Senate as the Electoral college ballots were counted — that of Richard Brevard Russell of Georgia, new elder statesman of the Senate.

It was a stern face which gives Russell the appearance of being tougher than he is. Actually he's a compassionate human being, who has been known to go out of his way to help a small dog get through the revolving door of the Senate Office Building.

Russell was elected to the Senate in the same year Franklin Roosevelt was elected President, 1932, and took office in January, two months ahead of Roosevelt. He is 71, and has served in the Senate 36 years as of tomorrow (Jan. 12).

Sen. Russell was born in Winder, Ga., population 5,555 and he has lived there all his life. In his domestic outlook he is a rural-minded, small-town Senator. When it comes to world affairs he is a far-sighted statesman. He makes few speeches, works from within.

Last week Sen. Russell made a statement which surprised many diplomats — that the United States should resume diplomatic relations with Red China. When two nations talk together, he said, they don't make war.

Looking through the back files of the Washington Merry-Go-Round, this statement is not so surprising. Russell has been consistently opposed to the war in Vietnam, and in November, 1964, shortly after Lyndon Johnson scored one of the greatest political victories in history, Russell was invited to the LBJ Ranch where he gave the newly reelected President some strong advice to get out of Vietnam.

Russell has been consistent. Some Senators allow themselves the luxury of inconsistency; more so in private, where they are not recorded, than in public where they are.

Back in April of 1954 when Vice President Richard Nixon told the American Society of Newspaper Editors the United States would land troops in what was then French Indo-China, Russell played an important part in thwarting such a move. When John Foster Dulles and Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, unfolded before a closed-door meeting plans to send American troops into the French Indo-Chinese jungles, Sen. Russell observed:

"That means war." Secretary Dulles denied this, claimed the United States would only send a police force. "When you commit the flag," said Russell, "you commit the country. And that is war."

Sen. Earle Clements of Kentucky asked Radford whether the other Joint Chiefs agreed with him about sending troops into the jungles.

"No," confessed the admiral. "I am the only one who favors this. But I am the only one familiar with Southeast Asia."

It was this searching cross-examination by Democratic Senators, plus editorial reaction to Nixon's statement, which caused the Eisenhower administration to back away from military intervention.

Note — Later the same year, however, Eisenhower did send a thousand troops into South Vietnam, and this force has now mushroomed into 545,000 men under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

Advice to USS Pueblo

The commander of the USS Pueblo would also have been better off if he had followed the recent advice of Sen. Russell and scuttled his spy ship.

The repatriated Pueblo crewman have now confirmed that they were unable to destroy all the super-secret electronic gear on board their ship. Only a few sensitive instruments, tapes and papers were destroyed. The rest was turned over to Russia by the North Koreans for careful analysis.

This included the highly secret instruments that the United States uses to track Soviet submarines. With this equipment, a spy ship can tell one Soviet sub from another by the distinctive noise its engines make under water.

The American equipment was considered far more sophisticated than anything the Russians have developed; so the seizure of the Pueblo was a far greater disaster than the public is likely to be told. To prevent such from happening again, the communications channels have been streamlined so that an SOS will reach the Pentagon in time to send fighter planes to the rescue.

The Pueblo's distress call was held up in channels until it was too late to do anything about it. The messages were routed from Japan to Pearl Harbor to the Pentagon, but the admirals at the lower levels had no authority to act. This has now been changed.

The dozen American spy ships still operating throughout the world have also been ordered to keep a safer distance from hostile shores. The Pueblo, for example, hasn't been replaced off the North Korean coast because of the risk. This has restricted U.S. ability to monitor one of the principal Soviet submarine and shipping corridors in the Far East.

Despite all the precautions, however, insiders admit that the United States probably couldn't stop a hostile power from seizing another spy ship. In the last analysis, the commander would have to take Sen. Russell's advice and scuttle the ship.

As Whip, Sen. Kennedy Will Push His Pet Ideas of Reform

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

(NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Like his late brother, Robert F. Kennedy, Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy of Massachusetts does not believe you can plan well for the presidency or anything else four years in advance. His victory as Democratic whip has to be seen in that light.

He knows, of course, that anything he does is going to be judged in terms of a possible presidential bid in 1972 or 1976. There is nothing he can do about it.

Naturally enough, he thinks about running some day. But his decision to challenge Sen. Russell Long for the whip's job was based on more immediate concerns.

Shortly after the 1968 election, Kennedy privately indicated that he did not want to adopt any course that would take him away from Washington either frequently or for long periods.

Though the critical words were not really spoken, it was plain that he feels it a necessity to serve as a kind of father-uncle to the 11 children of his brother's brood at Hickory Hill in Virginia.

It is possible, too, that he instinctively recoils from traveling the political banquet circuit that he and both his late brothers found so congenial in earlier times. This standard setting can be a painful reminiscence.

But there is more to it. Though he happily labored for his brothers in their presidential campaigns and is tightly tied into the Kennedy family tradition, a strong streak of independence runs in Ted Kennedy.

Unquestionably his name was his chief support in winning election as senator in 1962. Yet from the outset of his tenure, he has performed uniquely among the Kennedys.

Everybody knows now that he embraced the Senate more warmly than did either President Kennedy or his brother Robert. Inevitably, he drew a warmer response from his colleagues, and this stood him in good stead in the vote test with Long.

But, aside from liking the Senate more, Ted is a quite different politician from either of his brothers. He has a much greater gift for the small talk which is the lubricant of daily political relationships. He loves to work the telephone and enjoys more than his brothers did the tactical in-fighting on political problems.

Given all this, his challenge to Long, though bold in the swiftness of its assault on a seemingly entrenched figure, was both characteristically and highly suitable to his immediate purposes.

It gives him the chance he wanted to stay close to home. It enables him to break what had become a standard Kennedy pattern of using the Senate merely as a convenient base and going outside it to build national stature.

Obviously, he already has a good deal of that anyway. He can hereafter proceed to develop himself, and to help reconstruct his defeated party, in ways both special and satisfying to him.

Kennedy's public utterances on the matter accurately reflect his private views. He sees the Congress as the Democrats' only showcase between now and 1970 at least — and hence as the place to perform constructively, to introduce sensible reform, to infuse the party with new ideas and energies.

Being a forceful young man, he will have many opportunities to imprint his notions of reform, reconstruction and useful action on his receptive superior, Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield. The latter may give him especially wide running room in the domestic field.

Heart Too Late For Lumberjack, Dies in Hospital

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A Canadian awaiting a possible heart transplant operation died Friday night at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

The patient, Gerry Johnson, 43, of Royston, British Columbia, succumbed about 10 p. m., a hospital spokesman said.

Surgery had not been attempted, this spokesman added, and an autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death.

Johnson, a former paper company employee, had said earlier in the day he was happy to be a potential heart recipient.

Tests have shown it can be done without any complications, he said. "As far as an operation, that has a lot to do with a donor, of course. Everything seems to be proper for an operation."

Johnson suffered his first heart attack more than five years ago. He quit work as a logging boom foreman in 1966.

He and his wife, Elaine, flew from Vancouver to Houston on Jan. 3.

Darryl Johnson, 12 and his sister, Debbie, 9, are staying with friends in Canada while their mother is in Houston.

"We first discussed a heart transplant operation sometime in November with Dr. Marco Villanueva of Courtenay, British Columbia," Mrs. Johnson said earlier. "I had no hesitation."

Dr. Denton A. Cooley has led surgical teams in 17 heart transplant operations at St. Luke's.

Conservatives Elect Jackson

Kingston Area Conservative Party Club reelected William Jackson recently as its chairman.

At a meeting held in the Ulster County Court House the following officers were also named: Ronald Coles, vice chairman; Helen Radakovich, reelected treasurer and Joan Belser, secretary. Lucy Freer was reelected as publicity chairman.

Programs for 1969 were discussed by Arthur Bowen, program chairman who announced that a club library would be established and that meetings would feature movies, speakers, panels and a variety of activities.

The next meeting will be Feb. 13 in the Court House.

Baltz Heads Library Again

Chester A. Baltz was reelected president of the Kingston Library Association annual meeting this week.

Others elected were William Stall, vice-president; Robert O'Reilly, treasurer and Mrs. Ellsworth Johnson, secretary. New members of the board of trustees are Marshall Lipton, Mrs. Theodore Jackaway and Arthur G. Kurtzacker. O'Reilly was reelected to the trustee post.

Annual reports were given by Baltz; Mrs. Raymond Davis as treasurer and Richard H. Rosichan, director.

DHUD Approves City Program

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-Millbrook) announced today that the Department of Housing and Urban Development has reauthorized Kingston's workable program for 1969.

Fish noted that no actual grants are involved but that approval of the workable program allows Kingston to remain eligible for urban renewal funds, FHA insured loans for private housing, and funds for low rent housing.

The patient, Gerry Johnson, 43, of Royston, British Columbia, succumbed about 10 p. m., a hospital spokesman said.

Dear Abby

A Parent's Prayer for All

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune - N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: You once printed "A PARENT'S PRAYER" which had some wonderful advice in it for parents. I kept it for about five years and now I can't locate it, and I am just sick. If you know the piece I'm referring to, I beg you to print it again. Thank you.

LUCY ANN

DEAR LUCY: Thanks to a competent secretary I was able to dig it out. And here it is:

A PARENT'S PRAYER

O heavenly Father, make me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them or contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Forbid that I should ever laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame or ridicule when they displease me. May I never punish them for my own selfish satisfaction or to show my power.

Let me not tempt my child to lie or steal. And guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. And when I am out of sorts, help me, O Lord, to hold my tongue.

May I ever be mindful that my children are children and I should not expect of them the judgment of adults.

Let me not rob them of the opportunity to wait on themselves and to make decisions.

Bless me with the bigness to grant them all their reasonable requests, and the courage to deny them privileges I know will do them harm.

Make me fair and just and kind. And fit me, O Lord, to be loved and respected and imitated by my children. Amen.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that mothers are so much stricter with their daughters than they are with their sons? My mother watches us girls like hawks, but she lets my brothers do just about anything they want. My friends tell me it's the same at their house. I think this is very unfair.

No Accounting for Bad Bids

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is one of the silliest hands of 1968. The game was a match point team and at the first table North and South were playing a convention in which the double of a weak two bid showed a no-trump type of hand with a guaranteed stopper in the suit doubled. West opened a weak two spades, North doubled and South jumped to three no-trump.

The high powered executive was delivering a ghost written speech to a big audience. He was dwelling on the balance of payments problems, waxing warm with the wisdom of his ghost—"And here's what we should do about it," he reads, turning to the last page of his manuscript where he found the page blank except for this message scrawled—"Okay, wise guy, now you're on your own."

At an intertribal ceremonial, a Hopi turned to an Apache and asked, "Red Wing (the Hopi)—When we hold a Snake Dance, it always rains. Do you people have anything that powerful?" Black Hawk (the Apache thought for a moment)—"Not exactly. But we do have something called a Sunrise Dance. When we do that, the sun always rises the next morning."

We suggest you set those really big problems aside for a rainy day.

The airliner flew into a violent thunderstorm and soon was swaying and bumping around the sky. One nervous lady turned to a clergyman who happened to be sitting next to her, and asked beseechingly,

Mrs. Bass—Can't you do something?

Rev. Cole (gently)—I'm sorry, madam, but I'm in sales, not management.

A Boston newspaper some 73 years ago reported: "Joshua Coppersmith has been arrested for trying to extort funds from ignorant and superstitious people by a device which he says will convey the human voice over wires. He calls the instrument a telephone."

A woman tourist in Maine came to a fork in the road where signs to Portland pointed both ways. The lady called to a native who was standing nearby.

Mrs. Rice—Does it make any difference which road I take to Portland?

Joe (the native)—Not to me.

The salesman rang the doorbell and it opened revealing a 9-year-old boy puffing on a long, black cigar. Trying to hide his amazement, the salesman said,

Mr. Wells (the salesman)—Good afternoon, sonny, is your mother in?

The boy removed the cigar from his mouth, flicked off the ash, and said,

Young Jerry—What do you think?

Horoscope

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 12, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't ignore imperative request from mate, partner. You may have to settle problem connected with legacy, financial arrangement. He hold in sense that you are unafraid. Accept spiritual aid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you need stimulation you get it today. Much concerns past. Promises made and broken come to forefront. Be positive. Get facts. Don't risk reputation on speculation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may strive to accomplish too much, too quickly. Key is to seek balance. Work conditions have changed. Those around you move or make unusual announcements. Be perceptive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tendency is to act on impulse. Key is to remember family responsibilities. Remain close to home base.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Upsets indicated in areas previously quiet. Means what was settled is subject to revision. Could be result of surprise visit, message. Be perceptive. Avoid self-deception.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid excess speed. Steer clear of arguments with relative. Your views today may be controversial. Try diplomacy. Not easy but restraint is your great ally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finances activated. Means you become aware of possessions. Discussion is highlighted concerning debts, assets. Best to complete, finalize plans. Not so good for new starts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be overly aggressive. Know this and obtain hint from VIRGO message. Be independent but also considerate. New contact is stimulating. But don't embarrass old acquaintance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Activity indicated in connection with groups, institutions. You may be called upon to take initiative where charitable drive enters picture. Cooperate. You gain by giving.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Active evening—could feature romantic interlude. Key is to relax. Display sense of humor. Some around you may appear aggressive. Don't fall into trap of arguing over nothing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your abilities are scrutinized. Don't veer from accepted course. Concentration is required. Be authoritative. Fulfill obligations. No day to skip details or essentials.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): News from a distance may be based upon wishful thinking. Analyze possibilities, trends. Day features excitement, changes. Applies also to word from one who resides in different city.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are versatile, artistic. You are capable of expressing feelings in creative manner. Recognition comes in unique manner.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for SCORPIO, SAGITTARIUS, CAPRICORN. Special word to GEMINI: key is to know when to speak. Mainly—listen!

(To order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, "The Truth About Astrology," send 50 cents to Omarr Booklet, The Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.)

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JANUARY 13, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Check accounts. Consult expert where tax matters are concerned. Be thorough. Some may be overdrawn. This seems to affect you. Be aware. Dig deep. Ask questions—obtain answers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stress co-operation, teamwork. Mate or partner seeks change. Give a little—receive much. Consider partnership proposals. Mutual interest ties you to member of opposite sex.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make point of being friendly with associate, co-worker. Accent on job, essential tasks. You need aid from one with experience. Know this—don't let pride trip you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emotions run high. You need creative outlet. Don't be "taken for ride" by dazzling promise. See persons, situations as they actually exist. Otherwise, you could make costly error.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home, office activities appear to dominate. Handle responsibility. Not wise to delegate duties. Others tend to overlook important details. Be a keen observer. It pays extra dividends today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Insist on clarifying view. Don't take for granted that others automatically understand. Applies especially to neighbors, relatives. You are finishing a phase of activity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Day could feature buying, selling. Take initiative. Be an innovator. You could find genuine bargain. Don't overextend assets. Not wise to borrow—or lend. Be independent. Watch possessions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get going with important projects. Discussion with loved one proves beneficial. Misunderstanding can be erased if you are sensible. Cycle continues high. Dramatize appearance. Accent good points.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Best to remain in background. Day could feature secret negotiations. Be discreet. Play cards close to chest. Some may be after information which is confidential. Don't be duped.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You could get help today which increases income from occupation. Be alert. Make contacts. Be friendly. Study invitations. Purchase gift for one who has been charming to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Check career opportunities. Journey could prove beneficial. Encourage change, variety. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask, inquire—don't be shrugged off.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your views are spotlighted. Speak up—write and advertise. Important to "grow" above apparent obstacles. Be diplomatic but don't desert principles.

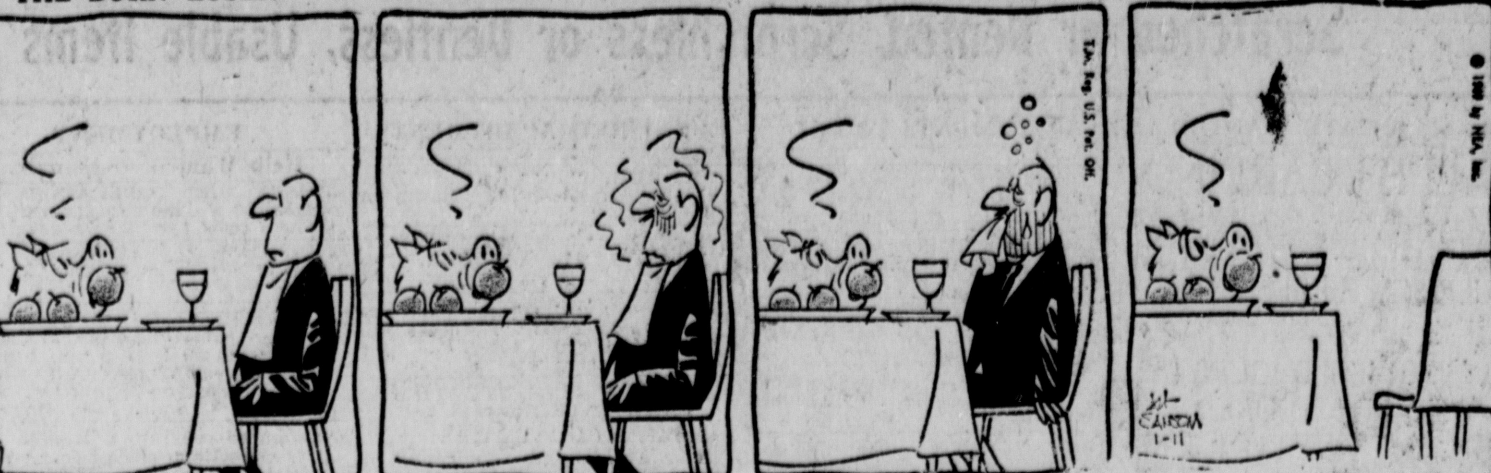

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can be stubborn. But you usually fight for what you believe to be right. Social life improves; greater happiness is on horizon.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for SCORPIO, SAGITTARIUS, CAPRICORN. Special word to CANCER: evening could be a meaningful, romantic one.

(To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secrets Hints for Men and Women." Send birthday and 50 cents to Omarr Astrology Freeman, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.)

Today's Word

By ROBERT FYNB and ERNEST PETERSAK

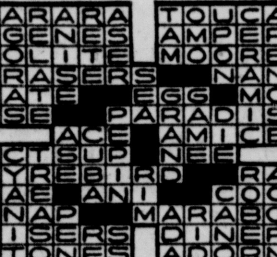

prudent (PREW-d'nt) sensible
The aged banker, a man whose prudent judgement in financial matters was widely respected, had just published a book about careful stock investing. After listening to the teenager explain how he obtained the whiskey, the experienced judge cautioned him to be more prudent in the selection of his friends. It is not considered very prudent to purchase a used car without first having a mechanic make a thorough inspection.

Plugs for More TV Romance

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—When ever the effect of constantly watching television gets me down, I re-read "Cyrano de Bergerac" as a replenishment of romance.

Whenever I have had my absolute fill of flapping television goodiegoodie about the "now" generation, the "now" this and the "now" that, I remember what was once written about the immortal Edmond Rostand play:

"It is only the realists, who write about contemporary manners and contemporary morals, who grow speedily old-fashioned: The romantics, who escape from their own period, remain forever young and ever new."

Perhaps this is why I believe that Truman Capote's two fragile dramatic specials for ABC-TV, "A Christmas Memory" and "The Thanksgiving Visitor," will remain forever young and ever new.

In a medium, television, that has an essentially immediate nature, these two Capote efforts—with their exquisitely timeless universals—will last, just as surely as the tract-like dramas will disappear with the wind. And isn't there a message there for the networks? With the downgrading of violence, isn't it time to pursue the quality most lacking in television—romance?

Although the setting was contemporary, last Friday night's 90-minute NBC-TV special, "Male of the Species," exuberant than the scene in speak.

House Dems Plan Taft - Hartley Revision

By H. L. SKHWARTZ III

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, with virtually a zero batting average on labor legislation last year, have opened a two-pronged attack aimed at repealing the most controversial section of the Taft-Hartley law.

The two bills are among four significant labor law proposals introduced by Democrats since the new Congress convened Jan. 3.

One bill would repeal Taft-Hartley's section 14B which allows states to pass so-called "right-to-work" laws barring union membership as a condition of employment.

Repeal was tried in the 89th Congress, but failed after a bruising fight.

The other measure would amend section 14B with the ultimate effect of repealing it.

Two other bills would make it easier for farm workers to organize and would remove restrictions on construction workers from staging a type of secondary boycott.

Old Wounds

It is too early to predict how much push will be given the labor measures, particularly those attacking 14B. The last battle on that issue opened wounds that have yet to heal.

"Whatever is done to promote it will depend largely on what Meany & Co. do," said an informed source. "And they haven't, as far as I know, come up with any decisions."

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, made repeal of 14B his major goal in 1965, and a bill passed the House. It was killed in the Senate early in 1966 by filibuster.

Meany reportedly agreed not to press President Johnson for another try in the 90th Congress in exchange for help on other measures.

Less than half the states have laws banning the union shop, but few issues are as emotional in a labor movement with many unions barely holding the line on membership.

The bill to repeal 14B was introduced by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich. Although he comes from a district in heavily unionized Detroit the fact he does not serve on a key labor committee raises doubts that a serious attempt is now planned to push the bill.

On the other hand, the measure to amend 14B was introduced by California Democrat Phillip Burton, a member of the Education and Labor Committee and its special subcommittee on labor.

Help for Farm Workers
Burton also introduced the bill that would extend protection of the National Labor Relations Act of 1935 to farm workers, indicating a serious push for it, too.

Without the protection, such workers can be fired for organizing activities and lack the right to have federally supervised elections to choose a union.

The measure has been around before, but died in the Rules Committee in the last session. Farm workers were excluded from the act because of the rural power in Congress when it was passed.

The bill could pick up some strength—and perhaps just as much opposition—from the well-publicized organizing campaign of California grape pickers. They have been promoting a nationwide boycott of grapes to dramatize their efforts and many groups have taken up their cause.

A serious effort also is indicated for the bill to aid construction workers, introduced by New Jersey Democrat Frank Thompson, Jr., chairman of the Labor Committee's special labor subcommittee.

The measure would allow members of an individual trade union to picket entire construction sites instead of limiting such demonstrations to their own area of work.

Under a 1951 Supreme Court decision, workers such as plumbers or electricians can picket only their own plumbing or electrical contractor and are barred from picketing the general contractor with a line that all other workers could refuse to cross.

The bill has been introduced in every session since former President Dwight D. Eisenhower first called for it in 1954. It has always had bipartisan support and one attempt even bore the name of conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Backers of the measure argue that workers such as those in manufacturing plants already have the right to picket entire plants although other employees may belong to many unions.

MINISKIRT PROBLEM—A California Assemblyman, Eugene Chappie, lost his cool and banned the miniskirt for female legislative employees. Mrs. Linda Marino (L) says she has some that are shorter than this, but she doesn't wear them any more. Sally Carter (R) is told to turn around, when a photographer took her picture, and get back to work. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Rockets Key to Survival For Lunar Landing Team

By PAUL RECER

SPACE CENTER. Houston (AP) — Three rocket engines must fire perfectly, one of them several times, for the moon landing crew to return to earth safely, the Apollo 11 commander told newsmen Friday.

Neil A. Armstrong, commander of the first American space crew with a chance to land on the moon, said all the firing of rocket engines around the moon "will have to be completed for us to come back."

"I recognize that no matter how good things get, there's always something that can malfunction," he said, when asked of the dangers of the flight.

Armstrong, a civilian, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins were named to the Apollo 11 crew by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Thursday. They held a lengthy news conference Friday.

'Great Honor'

Armstrong said he felt it "a great honor to be selected," but noted that "any one of our men (astronauts) would like to have this job."

Collins said "I don't think there's any of the Apollo mainline crews that couldn't take over" the lunar mission.

Aldrin said the selection came through "the twists and turns of fate" and he felt gratitude to a "fate kind enough to put us in this position."

Aldrin and Armstrong will make the descent to the lunar surface aboard the lunar module. Collins will stay aboard the command module in lunar orbit.

It hasn't been decided, Armstrong said, who will take the first step onto the moon—he or Aldrin—but that simulations of assigned lunar surface activities will be conducted to make that decision.

Aldrin said the astronauts will carry onto the surface equipment for three experiments. Two devices, a seismograph and a laser light beam reflector, will be left on the moon. A third device, a strip of foil which will measure the solar winds, will be left on the surface a brief time and brought back by the crew.

Hostile Terrain

But, Armstrong said, the most important thing to be learned on the first landing is how well man can work in the airless moon surface where gravity is one-sixth that of earth.

The crew will also bring back a number of samples of lunar dust and rock.

Reaction of the crew's wives varied.

Armstrong said his wife was "very happy" once she was assured he really wanted to go.

Collins said: "This is my fifth crew and my wife gets a little happier each time."

Aldrin said his wife was a little reluctant for him to attempt the dangerous mission, "but she'll come around."

Donald A. Slayton, chief of the flight crew operations, said that Apollo 11 could end up short of the moon if the preceding two Apollo flights fail to accomplish all objectives. If that happens he said, Apollo 14 could be a lesser mission flown to gather more flight information.

Another Strike Against Sirhan; Lawyer's Record Under Question

By JACK V. FOX

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Los Angeles County's hope of making the trial of Sirhan B. Sirhan a legal masterpiece is being embarrassed by a federal grand jury that keeps asking questions about Sirhan's leading attorney.

The situation threatens attorney Grant B. Cooper with potential contempt proceedings. It has become so serious that Cooper consulted a colleague about withdrawing from the trial of the young Jordanian accused of killing Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. He was advised to stay.

It also has led Cooper and his associates in Sirhan's defense, attorneys Russell Parsons and Emil Zola Berman, to seek further delays in the Sirhan trial—apparently without success. Sirhan is due back in court Monday when selection of a jury is to begin.

On Friar's Case

Cooper's difficulties with the federal grand jury have nothing to do with the Sirhan case. They stem from his role as a defense lawyer in the Friars Club card cheating trial, in which five men were convicted of fleeing wealthy actors and businessmen of an estimated $400,000 in crooked card games at a stag club in Beverly Hills.

Before that trial, the federal grand jury held lengthy hearings on the Friars Club matter. The testimony, much of it from big names in worlds of business and entertainment, was supposed to be secret, not available to the defense lawyers.

Late in the trial, somebody noticed a transcript of testimony given the grand jury by actor Phil Silvers lying on a table near Cooper. The attorney was questioned by the trial judge. He said he did not know how the transcript got there. Later he admitted this was not true. When the grand jury summoned Cooper to question him about the transcript, he pleaded that the questions violated his confidential relationship with a client.

On Tuesday, U.S. Dist. Judge Francis Whelan ordered Cooper to return to the grand jury room and answer the questions regardless. Cooper, who had vowed to go to jail rather than answer, went before the jury. He declined afterward to discuss his testimony.

Await Decision

Through the rest of the week, other attorneys and a one-time bail bond broker have been testifying before the grand jury. No outcome of the matter has been announced by Whelan or U.S. Atty. Matt Byrne.

Cooper, 65, was recommended to Sirhan by A.L. Wirin of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union. For Cooper, it was to be the keystone of a distinguished legal career as one of California's most successful trial lawyers. He plans to retire soon.

Cutter Goes Aground Near Bear Mountain

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

BEAR MOUNTAIN—A Coast Guard icebreaker, the Sassafras, well-known in this area, went aground Friday afternoon on a seven foot shoal in the Hudson River about two miles north of the Bear Mountain Bridge.

Early report said the buoy tender went aground, was ripping apart and sinking. However, John Ross of the Coast Guard's public relations office in New York City said the vessel struck bottom in the forward hull, the hull and main hold and main fuel tank were flooded but the crew of about 45 has been pumping out the water and everything was under control.

Power Chapter Of IEEE Will Meet Tuesday

The Power Chapter of the Mid-Hudson Section, Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers will meet Tuesday, Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Central Hudson auditorium, South Road, Poughkeepsie.

Walter E. Thomas of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation will present an illustrated talk on Distribution Systems in High Rise Buildings.

All persons interested in the electric power field, including non-members, are welcome to attend.

It was expected that the vessel will be towed to the nearest port.

Ross said the two 110-foot Coast Guard Tugs Manitou and Mahoning and two Coast Guard helicopters were at the scene and aiding the crew of the distressed vessel.

The Sassafras was breaking ice to clear the Hudson River channel at the time of the mishap. Ross said no one was injured and the safety of the crew was assured. He said Capt. Hutchins is commanding the Sassafras.

The Tug Manitou was scheduled for a run from Poughkeepsie to Hudson to clear the channel of ice when the distress call made her turnabout and proceeded on the rescue mission.

The Associated Press reported that the ship would be aground through Tuesday.

Lt. John G. Keating at Governor's Island Coast Guard Headquarters said the 180-foot ship had taken on enough water to sink if it were moved off the rock ledge it ran into.

The two rescue tugs were relaying gasoline for the distressed ship's pumps. A small boat sent from the Manitou to bring gas had engine trouble and had to be paddled, the AP said.

Three other ships have been grounded on the same rock since 1962, including another Coast Guard cutter.

The Sassafras is stationed at Cape May, N. J., and the two other cutters sailed from Governor's Island.

Teenage Consumer Assembly Set Monday at Kingston High

Kingston teenagers will be aided in sharpening their buying skills Monday, Jan. 13 at a special Teenage Consumer Assembly in Kingston High School at 9 a.m. The program is being given by the Ulster County Business and Professional Women's Club in cooperation with the New York State Commerce Department Woman's Program.

Jean Adams, one of America's leading authorities on matters of interest to teenagers whose nationally syndicated column Teen Form makes its debut in The Daily Freeman on Monday, was scheduled to be a special guest. The Freeman has advised that Miss Adams has the flu and will be unable to attend.

Student Members of the Kingston High School branches of Distributive Education Clubs of America and Future Business Leaders of America are also helping to plan and present the four-part program for 700 of their business classmates.

Cognizant of the fact that by 1970, teenagers throughout America will be spending $20 billion each year and influencing the spending of about four times this amount on the part of their families, the Commerce Department and the Ulster County Chapter of the BPW Clubs, Inc., feel this type of programming is essential for teenagers.

In honor of the occasion Kingston Mayor Raymond Garraghan has proclaimed the day "Kingston Teenage Consumer Assembly Day."

The assembly format will include a panel of teenage speakers, fashion show, jingle contest and Consumer Fact Quiz Game.

Contest judges will include Mrs. Dorothy A. Narel, Woman's Editor, The Daily Freeman; Harry Thayer, Radio Station WGHQ; and Dan Allen, principal, Kingston High School. Loryne Connick, director of the KHS Business Department, will introduce the guests.

BPW coordinator is Mrs. Barbara Read, chairman of the BPW Personal Development Committee.

Held for Gun

Kingston detectives early today arrested Charles William Price, Jr., 26, of 45 St. James Street, on a charge of possessing a dangerous weapon. Police said that Price, an auto mechanic, was accused of having a pistol in his possession when detectives investigated a complaint from a local tavern. Price was held pending an appearance before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

THE SOUTHERN CATSKILLS—NOTHING LIKE THEM EAST OF THE ROCKIES

Part II in a Series

How Well Do You Know Your Valley?

(Last week TEMPO began a short series on the scenic and entertainment attractions offered to residents and visitors alike in the Hudson Valley Region. The first article emphasized the distinctive historical flavor of Rockland and Orange Counties. TEMPO follows through this week with a tour of Sullivan County, sometimes called the world's fairest vacationland, and parts of the Catskill-Taconic Region. Future stories will discuss our own Ulster County, Greene County, the Capital District of Albany, Schenectady and Saratoga Springs.)

To reach Sullivan County from our own part of the Catskills, the most scenic route is out of Kingston onto Route 209 and through Hurley, where motorists frequently stop to see the beautiful old stone houses. Then it's on to Ellenville and over Route 17 to Monticello, the hub of Sullivan County.

Because Sullivan County is unique in this state in its offerings to vacationists and tourists in its variety of accommodations, it is impossible to mention each and every resort and attraction in these pages. Suffice it to say that a myriad of accommodations are available on whatever scale your pocketbook and taste might desire, whether it's for a night's stay, a week, or the full summer. For full and complete information, we suggest you write the Sullivan County Hotel Association, Monticello.

Without detracting from our own Ulster, one must admit that Sullivan County is a vacationland phenomenon the like of which is not to be seen east of the Rockies nor north of Florida. People come from all over the world to lose themselves in its mountains and forests, fish in its famous trout streams, and hunt the largest deer herd in New York State.

A Bewildering Array

Yet within a 20-mile-radius west, north and east of Monticello, the nature lover will find such a heavy concentration of resort hotels, motels, bungalow colonies and rooming houses that their number and character will be bewildering. Except for the absence of desert and tropical vegetation, it's like sojourning in Palm Springs or Palm Beach at one and the same time.

The Southern Catskills are not high as mountains go, but they are scenic in that area where Monticello, Liberty and Woodbourne form a triangle within or near which there are over a dozen major resort hotels, including the largest ones in the east, such as Grossinger's and the Concord. There are also scores of slightly lesser lights of the resort world, and well over a thousand bungalow colonies and rooming houses of every size and description. This is that unique spot where three generations of hotel men have devoted themselves to the glorification of mountain vacationing, and their achievements have produced unique facilities that defy the talents of press agency.

As the county seat and the hub from which excellent roads radiate to all sections of Sullivan, Monticello offers vacationists and weekenders an extra, added attraction in the Monticello Raceway, now 10 years old and the fastest growing night harness racing track in New York. Its seasonal highlight is a week of Grand Circuit Racing.

As exciting as the Raceway can be, we have become just as fond of a Sullivan attraction that is its complete opposite. We speak of Narrowsburg, so typical of the delightful small towns that cater to the family style vacation, rather than the more sophisticated air of the many big resorts in other parts of the county. The road which takes one there — Route 97 — is beautifully scenic, meandering gently along, sometimes in view of the Delaware River, sometimes in the hills. Accommodations are plentiful and varied in Narrowsburg, and the shops are delightful. More detailed information on accommodations can be secured from the Narrowsburg Chamber of Commerce.

Fort Delaware

And it is at Narrowsburg, too, that one finds Fort Delaware, a completely reproduced Fort that stands on the promontory at Narrowsburg overlooking the beautiful Delaware River.

The site of the original fort, built in 1761, was on the other side of the river. Hardy colonial settlers fortified this village, putting up the first stockade with blockhouses around the houses of the now legendary Moses Thomas, James Adams and the Calkins brothers.

On a visit to Fort Delaware today, one learns the full story of how these courageous Connecticut Yankees existed and defended themselves while under attack by Indians or Tories, or both.

Another delightful attraction in the area is the Delaware Valley Model Railroad, which began as a hobby for its owner. There is no admission charge but exhibit hours are limited. During July and August the building which houses the railroad is open only on Wednesday and Friday evenings from 8 to 10 p.m., but those two hours can be delightfully spent on a rainy night.

The wonderful model railroad is built to 1/4 inch scale, and took more than six years to complete. The 800 feet of track is the equivalent of seven and a half miles. Some 9,000 ties and 22,000 spikes were used in laying the two rail system. The rolling stock consists of 11 locomotives, 50 freight cars and 22 passenger cars, and the detail work in the interiors of the passenger cars is notable.

Crossing the River

A side trip on your way to Sullivan attractions might well take you across the Mid-Hudson Bridge to Poughkeepsie, and on north to Hyde Park. The trip from New Paltz across the river to Poughkeepsie is scenic and, for us, always interesting. Sometimes the road goes high in the hills overlooking the Hudson, and at times it descends low in the valleys. Any trip to Poughkeepsie should include a visit to Vassar College — and it was also here that the Smith Brothers started on their fabulous way to world-wide fame via Smith Brothers cough drops, an industry still sustained today by the display of the fine, full beards of the Brothers Smith.

But on to Hyde Park and a visit to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Home, the Shrine of the late President, and the Library which was opened there in 1940. Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who died in 1962, now lies beside her husband in the ivy covered enclosure on the grounds.

James Roosevelt, the late President's father, purchased the original clapboard house in 1867, but the intervening years have changed its facade considerably. It has remained much the same, however, since 1915 and, sitting high above the Hudson, it commands a magnificent panorama. Easily

Something Rare In Folk Singing

In Robert DeCormier, the American folk song has found an adult musical spokesman. Classically versed, with a great knowledge of folklore, DeCormier is equally adept as a conductor, composer and arranger—an all-round man of the theatre. He uses exquisite musical tact to move the simple folk tune into heroic choral dimensions.

DeCormier will be in Kingston this month and, with him, will be the men and women of the DeCormier Chorus of folk singers, a group of superbly trained professional singers. They'll be performing, under the auspices of The Community Concerts Association, in a program slated for Wednesday, Jan. 22 at the Community Theatre. What local audiences will see and hear will be singers with perfect pitch, precise diction and delightful showmanship. Under DeCormier's hand, these choristers and musicians project the warmth and magnetism of the legendary troubadour but many times multiplied.

Before forming his own touring group of folk singers, DeCormier was responsible for the choral work in a number of hit shows on Broadway and for several folk music series on TV. He has the reputation, whether directing a recording session, appearing in concert, or with his chorus on TV, of getting the very best from his singers. Critics have hailed his programs as "brilliantly paced" and called them "relaxed, precise and at all times spontaneous."

Electrifying Group

Their concert here in Kingston promises to be exciting and stimulating, for—as a Choral group—they place a unique emphasis on the song and its interpretive depth. There is more than a little electricity in the air when the DeCormier Singers launch into their vast song repertoire of many nations, bringing all the verve and excitement of a theatrical entertainment to the concert stage.

Composed of 14 men and women vocalists, plus three instrumentalists, they have toured the U.S. and Canada, city by city, for the past four years; have been accorded standing ovations everywhere.

It is their phrasing which often impresses most, and the delicacy of their singing is aided by the use of effective lighting techniques, handled as sensitive complements to the songs.

The super-professional delivery of the DeCormier Folk Singers is a result of the vast creative talents of DeCormier himself. He composed the fine original score of "The World of Sholom Aleichem" and "The Wall" and did the choral arrangements for "The Happiest Girl in the World," "Milk and Honey," and "110 in the Shade" on Broadway. He wrote the original folk cantata, "The Jolly Beggars," and has been involved with so much television, radio and recording work that the list defies reprinting. Among those who have utilized his services are Harry Belafonte, Charlton Heston, Jan Peerce, the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Eugene Ormandy and his Philadelphia Orchestra, and Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. He won unusual praise for conducting a concert version of the opera "The Good Soldier Schweik" in New York's Town Hall. He has also served as musical director for NET television for a series of plays by George Bernard Shaw, James Baldwin, and Bertold Brecht.

For all these reasons, the Jan. 22 concert here in Kingston by the DeCormier Folk Singers is guaranteed to present a new concept in concert entertainment. It should prove a unique theatrical experience for those who attend.

Oscar-Winner Writer Gives Bard Scenarios

Howard E. Koch of Woodstock, who followed his graduation from Bard in 1922 by studying and practicing law, settled down after a bit with the career he has followed since with impressive integrity and success. His scripts and screenplays are well known, from the wildly successful Halloween radio broadcast of The War of the Worlds, with Orson Welles in 1938, through his Oscar-winning Casablanca in the forties and, last year, the controversial The Fox, based on the D. H. Lawrence story.

He has recently given to the library at Bard College a group of papers, including the director's script for his play, The Albatross, which was presented in the Theatre Royal East in London. The play, in two acts, was suggested by the lives of Charles and Mary Lamb, and the script now in the library carries penciled changes, and includes set and lighting plots and stills from the London production. Also presented to the college were copies of the screenplay for The Fox and for The War Lover a film starring Steve McQueen and made by Columbia pictures in London in 1961. The latter volume includes stills and a letter to Mr. Koch from the producer, Arthur Hornblower. A copy of a 600 acres of the site will be deeded to the college. Koch has written with John Huston, In Time to Come, which is concerned with Woodrow Wilson and the League of Nations, and was produced by Otto Preminger on Broadway in 1941, includes reviews from the New York papers. Also in the collection are stills from the Warner Brothers production of Sergeant York, for which Mr. Koch wrote the screenplay.

On loan temporarily to the library is Mr. Koch's personal scrapbook, with extensive clippings and letters dealing with his play about Lincoln in modern times, The Lonely Man, which in 1937 ran for a year at the Blackstone Theatre in Chicago and which launched John Huston, playing Lincoln, into the world of the theatre. It also contains pages of news stories on the War of the Worlds broadcast, reflecting the mixture of terror and amusement and outrage which swept the country, when the east coast thought it was being invaded by Martians.

Zoo's Who in Toronto

Guests of honor at a recent event in Toronto, Canada's second largest city, included anteaters and tigers. It was the official opening of a $20 million zoo project which will take several years to complete, and will cover 1,250 acres of land. The zoo will include a monorail system to the climate-controlled transparent dome center and a 600 acres of the site will be deeded to the college. Koch has written with John Huston, In Time to Come, which

Round Dozen Winter Carnivals

February is "Mardi Gras" of the Adirondack Mountain lake. month in the Empire State. During the month, twelve winter carnivals are scheduled at ski centers and communities in the state.

Carnival time brings out a holiday mood and a period when "kings and queens" reign over programmed revelry, competitive sports, float-filled parades, beauty pageants, torchlight spectacles and gay, costume balls.

Most February carnivals are gala weekend fun festivals that traditionally open with a parade, party or pageant. The crowning attraction for the social snow set is the coronation of a king and queen, who preside over all events whether sports, parades or pageants.

Variety of Sports

Winter carnivals are many things to many people. For sports enthusiasts, carnivals means a variety of skiing and ice skating races. Carnivals schedule downhill and giant slalom ski races, figure skating competitions, snowmobile races, sports car and motorcycle races on ice, hockey tournaments, speed skating and even golf on the icy "greens and fairways"

For added attractions, the winter carnivals have ice and snow sculpturing, and automobile gymkhanas on ice. Torchlight skiing and fireworks lighten the night sky at some carnivals.

Lake George will host its second annual winter carnival, Feb. 1-23. One feature will be the Polar Icecap Open Golf Tournament, which holds the unique distinction of being the only golf tournament ever canceled because of warm weather. Lake George carnival golfers will drive red golf balls to a properly-tinted green. Also on tap are snowmobile, ice boat, sports car and motorcycle races on the frozen lake.

The golf tournament will be held Feb. 1-2, weather permitting. Snowmobile races will be run on the same two days. Sports car races are set for Feb. 8-9 and ice boat contests for Feb. 15-16; motorcycle racing Feb. 16. On Feb. 22-23, both sports car and ice boat drivers will test their steering skills in an ice gymkhana.

The Greater Utica Winter Carnival, Feb. 1-March 2, will feature a parade, Feb. 15, and the coronation of a carnival queen, Feb. 7. Hockey games, snowmobile and skiing races at Val Bialas Ski Slope are part of the Utica festivities. An ice sculpturing competition has been added to this year's Utica carnival.

Dress Warmly

Although carnival communities generate warmth and hospitality, visitors should wear winter boots, extra sweaters, parkas and mittens. Because most carnival events are held outdoors, visitors will enjoy festivities more when warmth supersedes style.

Other New York winter carnivals include: Feb. 3, Andes; Feb. 6-9, Auburn; Feb. 8-9, Camden; Feb. 13-16, Potsdam; Feb. 14-16, Silver Bells at Wells; Feb. 15-16, Boonville.

Feb. 15-20, Saranac Lake. One of the oldest winter carnivals in the nation, Saranac's 1969 gala will be its 72nd annual.

Feb. 20-23, Cohocton; Feb. 21-25, Cooperstown; Feb. 22, Watertown.

A free "New York State Events Calendar" is available from the State Commerce Department, 112 State Street, Albany, New York 12207.

Cellist Sherry Named Soloist

Among the more interesting guest artists to appear here in Kingston with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra during its current 10th anniversary season will be the youthful cellist, Fred Sherry.

As winner of the 1967-68 season Young Artists Competition sponsored by the locally this season and the late Friends of the Philharmonic, Sherry is only 19-year-old. He will perform as soloist with the series. In November, harpist Igor Kipnis appeared in a here. Future concerts will feature Aaron Copland as guest conductor and Paul Badura-Skoda as piano soloist.

Four concerts are being presented by the orchestra City. As winner of the Young Artists Competition he will join previous young artists who have thus launched their concert careers as soloists with the Philharmonic.

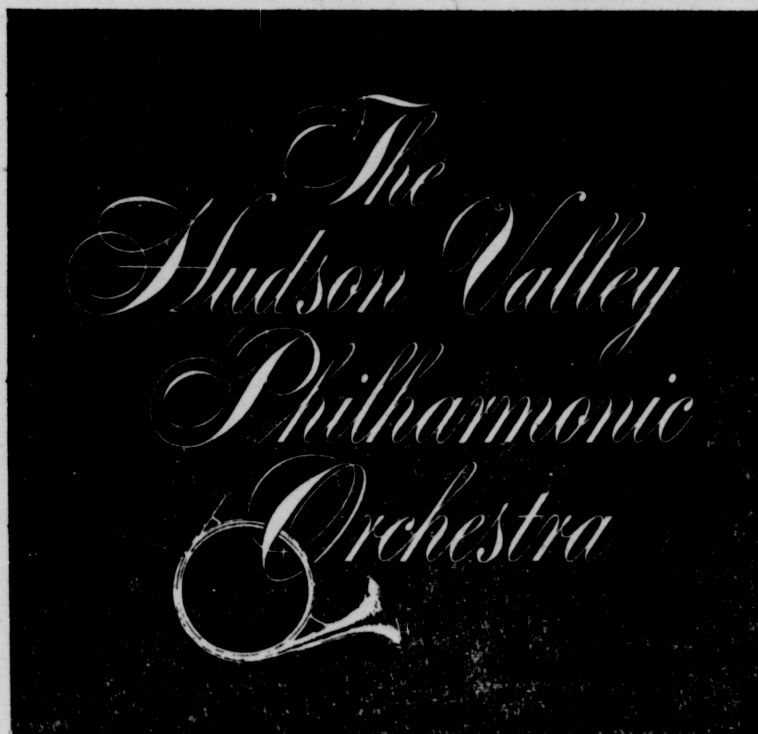

The concert in which he will appear will be conducted by Claude Montoux, music director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. Montoux has been acclaimed throughout the orchestra world for his success in developing a fully professional symphony orchestra ranked with those in major metropolitan areas from what was an amateur ensemble ten years ago.

The walnut is the oldest known tree food of man. Shells of walnuts were found in the Neolithic man, dating from about 7000 B.C.

Marshall McLuhan, What Ya Doin'?

Moore's Wastebasket

His work has appeared in virtually every magazine in the western world. And if you were in a position to ask Marshall McLuhan what he was doin' (as Henry Gibson does so often on Laugh-In), he'd probably say he was digging Peter Moore's photographs in his (McLuhan's) acclaimed book, "The Medium Is the Message."

Peter Moore is a New York City photographer who has provided photos for dozens of books and he's the subject of one of the brightest art exhibits of the season in this area. "Effluvia 1968 — The Wastebasket of Peter Moore, Photographer" is the title of the current art show at Bennett College in nearby Millbrook. It's now on view daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Halcyon Hall Art Gallery on the Dutchess County campus through Jan. 25.

Moore is equally at home as a photographer of the avant-garde art world or as the man behind the lens for catalogues of the Whitney Museum and others.

Unique 'Course' Takes Students To NYC Events

A unique "course" in the best that the performing arts can provide is being given to 1,000 high school seniors from 549 schools in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut during the present school year.

They are the winners of the 1968-69 Lincoln Center Student Awards which means they're attending five performances of a variety of events during the present season at Lincoln Center. The Awards program, now in its sixth year, provides an opportunity for outstanding high school seniors to add the performing arts to their experience. Winners are nominated by the principals of their schools on the basis of academic excellence, potential for leadership and general interest in the arts. This season they'll see two performances by the New York Philharmonic, the Repertory Theater of Lincoln Center's production of "King Lear" with Lee J. Cobb, and one performance each by the New York City Ballet and the New York City Opera. They also attended an orientation session at which ballet stars Jacques d'Amboise and Melissa Hayden and Repertory Theater actors discussed and demonstrated aspects of the programs to be seen this year.

While no Ulster County students are included in the 1,000 winners, many students from such nearby counties as Dutchess, Orange, Putnam and Rockland are involved in the program, which offers them the special opportunity to enjoy the very best in the arts in the adult atmosphere of regular performances at Lincoln Center.

Political Fraction

The Quids was a faction of the Republican party led by John Randolph from 1805 to 1811. The name was derived from tertium quid, signifying their separation from both parties.

The Bennett show displays examples of his work from the year just past, including photos of celebrities, art world personalities, happenings, and gallery and museum publications. Bennett also honored Moore with an exhibit in 1964 which displayed photographs of children at work and at play. Titled "Kids II," the show left Bennett to travel widely throughout galleries across the U.S.

TV's Highlights and Sidelights

They're predicting that Enzo Cerasico, the young Italian who co-stars with James Whitmore in the new NBC-TV series, My Friend Tony, which is aired for the first time this week, will be a big star. He says he hopes his role will change some Americans' ideas of the average Italian. "I'm trying to destroy the image most Americans have and prove it's not true that all Italians eat spaghetti, pinch girls and wear black mustaches," he quips.

Friend of ours saw previews of the forthcoming ABC-TV special about French ski champ Jean-Claude Killy says it's the "best personality type documentary" he's ever seen—and he's seen a lot of them over the past 20 years. The show, set for Jan. 13, is called Killy: Le Champion.

Proof of why TV is so expensive is the fact that last Sunday's episode of Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, called "Solomon, the Sea-Turtle," took four and a half months of work in the Caribbean to get it ready for viewing.

The Top Three

The three most financially successful series on television, based on original runs and reruns, would seem to be Gunsmoke, Perry Mason and Lucille Ball.

It's really too bad that the TV programmers hit head to head again, making the audience the loser. We refer to NBC's new magazine formatted news series, First Tuesday, a longer version of the CBS news mag, 60 Minutes, and partly programmed opposite that entry. Both are excellent but a viewer can only take one or the other, or parts of both.

First Tuesday debuted with a raft of news features running the gamut from a segment on body building with famed strongman, Charles Atlas, now 76, to a sobering look at the "21st Century Man," a new generation of revolutionaries being created by Fidel Castro to export his brand of communism. Other interesting features included a talk with Dr. Philip Blaiberg, the heart transplant story of the year; an examination of the continuing phenomenon known as baton-twirling; and a conversation with 50-year-old glamour girl Rita Hayworth. Meanwhile, 60 Minutes was offering some fine behind-the-scenes views of the professional and social lives of Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, including some odd-ball, on-set scenes at the Laugh-In; a conversation with Spiro Agnew; and a talk with German SS Colonel Otto Skorzeny in which he told about Hitler's plan to assassinate Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin at Teheran.

Too bad these two shows couldn't have been scheduled on different nights.

She Surprised Us

Carol Lynley surprised us by the depth of her performance in "Bunny Lake Is Missing" on The Wednesday Night Movie. She was even able to hold her own against the formidable talent of Sir Laurence Olivier. The picture itself was a study of mental aberrations; had Miss Lynley as the mother of a four-year-old girl who turns up missing from nursery school.

Ironside didn't pull any punches in a very good story about dope addiction among the young. This week's show was a frightening one, especially in a scene in which policewoman Eve Whitfield took her niece to visit a home for drug addicts, all under 21, and in another scene where Raymond Burr "told it like it is" to four young girls, all in varying stages of addiction.

It is easy to see why critics and audiences have been responding enthusiastically to the recent cross-country tours of the National Theatre of the Deaf, after seeing these excellent actors on NET PLAYHOUSE. Performing "Gianni Schicchi" in pantomime in commedia dell'arte style, the troupe was superlative.

TEMPO'S PICK OF THE PROGRAMS FOR THE WEEK AHEAD:

Today, Sat., Jan. 11

THE SENIOR BOWL (NBC, 2 p.m.). Top college football players from the North meet a team from the South at Ladd Stadium in Mobile, Ala.

PRO BOWLERS TOUR (ABC, 3:30 p.m.). The new season begins with the $45,000 Greater Los Angeles Open, aired live from that city.

WORLD OF GOLF (NBC, 5 p.m.). Arnold Palmer, Gay Brewer and Juan Rodriguez compete at the El Conquistador Hotel in Puerto Rico.

WIDE WORLD OF SPORT (ABC, 5 p.m.). International

Women's Alpine Skiing Championship from Oberstaufen, Germany, and the 1,000 Mile Cross Country Racing Championship from Baja California, Mexico.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). "The Birdman of Alcatraz" is an excellent dramatization of the real life story of convict Robert Stroud; stars Burt Lancaster a shteman convicted of murder in 1909 and sentenced to life imprisonment. During his 53 years in prison, he became an expert on birds and their diseases; wrote a well-accepted book on the subject.

Sunday, Jan. 12

LAMP UNTO MY FEET (CBS, 10 a.m.). Negro community group from Chicago's South Side tells the Christmas story in original contemporary soul music in "Time Is Running Out: An Afterthought to Christmas."

DISCOVERY '69 (ABC, 11:30 a.m.). Concluding its "Backyard Odyssey" with a look at the life cycle of a praying mantis and a feature on an ant lion.

FACE THE NATION (CBS, 12:30 p.m.). Scores a coup with a live interview from New York with Apollo 8 astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders.

THE SUPER BOWL (NBC, 3 p.m.). Climax of the pro football season has the AFL champions, the New York Jets and quarterback Joe Namath, meeting the NFL champs, the Baltimore Colts, in Miami's Orange Bowl.

PRESIDENTS I'VE KNOWN (CBS, 6 p.m.). Arthur Krock, calling upon his 60 years of experience as a newsman on the Washington scene, is interviewed by Eric Sevareid.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW (CBS, 8 p.m.). Goes on the road with a live telecast from Circus in Las Vegas, where customers are not only in danger of losing money at the crap tables, but also of having an aerialist land on their heads.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). It's "Zulu" and it's a really good adventure film with Michael Caine, Stanley Baker and Jack Hawkins in a tale of an 1879 battle in Africa which, in real life, brought 11 Victoria Crosses to the participants.

UNDERSEA WORLD OF JACQUES COUSTEAU (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). Two sea lions make friends with Cousteau and his Calypso research vessel crew.

NET JOURNAL (Channel 13 at 8 p.m. and Channel 17 at 9 p.m.). "Fasten Your Seat Belts" focuses on the hazardous skies and snarled airports where air traffic grows far faster than the facilities available at present to handle it.

TO LOVE A CHILD (ABC, 9 p.m.). A study of the joys and frustrations involved in adopting a child.

JOYCE FLYNN AND BILL RHYS share a moment together in the comedy "Gianni Schicchi," performed by the National Theatre of the Deaf on NET Playhouse. The 13 young virtuoso actors of this magnificent troupe brought their very special talents of movement and pantomime to Channel 17 last night. The program was a source of total pleasure and pure art and attested to the fact that these very talented actors show that actions speak louder than words.

Friday, Jan. 17

WORLD WE LIVE IN (Channel 17, 6:30 p.m.). "Animal War, Animal Peace" focuses on a "bird city" colony of herring gulls and on the reaction of fish to territorial intruders in an effort to learn whether animals can teach men how to keep from killing one another. Scientists note that animals, like man, are aggressive in nature but, unlike man, animals of the same species rarely battle to the death. (COMPILED BY T. GEERTSEMA)

Tuesday, Jan. 14

NBA ALL-STAR GAME (ABC, 8:30 p.m.). Topnotch basketball live from Baltimore.

TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke both won Oscars for their roles in this 1962 film, "The Miracle Worker."

Wednesday, Jan. 15

NET FESTIVAL (Channel 17, 8 p.m.). The second program in "The Film Generation" reflects the obsession of today's young filmmakers with war, and their anguished indictments against false nostalgia for the heroics of the past, and the way the media conditions people from childhood to war.

DIAHANN CARROLL stars in "Julia," NBC-TV series on Tuesday nights. The first situation comedy to field a mostly Negro cast, it's riding high in the polls as one of the best liked shows of the season.

JOAN BLONDELL is a regular cast member of "Here Comes the Brides," the TV series about frontier days in old Seattle. Seen Wednesday nights on ABC, it's ranked as one of the five most popular shows of the year.

Philip Schuyler's Historical Impact

A new booklet, "Philip Schuyler and the Growth of New York, 1733-1804," has just been published by the Office of State History of the State Education Department. It has been based on extensive manuscript sources and is intended to serve the needs and interests of teachers, students, historians, and general readers. The 48-page illustrated booklet was written by Don R. Gerlach, associate professor of history at the University of Akron, who has authored other works about Schuyler. Eugene F. Kramer, senior historian in the Office of State History, edited the pamphlet and wrote the introduction. Philip Schuyler's military, political, and business careers came in one of the most significant periods of American history. As colonial landowner, soldier, merchant, and political leader, he influenced greatly the development of colonial New York, and he was a leader in the events which led to the American Revolution. His service as Major General in command of the Northern Department (New York) laid the basis for the defeat of General John Burgoyne at Saratoga in 1778. Following dismissal from his command by Congress, he was acquitted, with honor, of charges of incompetence. He remained an active rebel, serving in the Continental Congress, State Legislature and

Ceramic Classes

Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen will sponsor a new series of ceramic classes by Philip Bresler, the talented ceramist who operates Freewheel Potteries in the art colony. Bresler's ceramic works have been exhibited in New York City's America House, Connecticut's Pasco Gallery, Detroit's International Art Institute, and other famed display places. His new course will consist of eight classes to be conducted at his Freewheel Potteries Studio on Larson Lane, Woodstock. Classes will be held each Monday from 7 to 9 p.m., beginning Jan. 20. Further information may be obtained by calling Bresler at his home number, or by contacting the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen, Tinker Street, Woodstock.

That Irascible W. C. Fields

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — W. C. Fields was one of those singular comedians who never took life too seriously and created a sense of humor that carried his wit beyond the grave.

Fields was an incorrigible cynic, an irascible iconoclast, a convincing con man, a gargantuan imbibor of the giddy spirits who might have toasted a happy New Year" every day of the week.

Much has been said about Fields' dislike of children, but those kids who watch his movies on off-hour television shows laugh at his characterizations.

And today's rebellious youth find something of value in Fields' brilliant choice of words and flights into geographical fantasy.

Movie Lines

Some of the most humorous scenes which Fields made in movies during the Great Depression are available on an unusual recording simply entitled "W. C. Fields" Decca DL 79164. It includes lines from 14 movies and some of them are hilarious.

There is a W. C. Fields cult today and Uncle Bill Socks It To Ya" Dot DLP 25873 should appeal to its membership. "Uncle Bill" is a perfect imitator of Fields. He has perfected the intonation of Fields and has brought the late humorist's fancy for words into 1968. It's worth hearing.

But least it be forgot, W.C. Fields' portrayal of Mr. Micawber in Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield," remains one of the finest characterizations in the history of movies. He was quite a guy.

Valachi Sings About Cosa Nostra

THE VALACHI PAPERS. By Peter Maas. Putnam. $6.95.

Joseph Valachi was a murderer and all-around enforcer, strong arm man, burglar, thief and shylock (to name some of his professional criminal activities). He might have ended his life as the occupant of a concrete-filled drum, or in prison, or peacefully in his own bed, passing from the scene as a criminal of no particular distinction.

But one day in June 1964, Joe Valachi began to sing. It was not from remorse or to cleanse his conscience or to turn to good works. He was scared out of his wits. Imprisoned in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, he thought that Vito Genovese, who was serving time for a narcotics offense, had given him the "kiss of death."

Valachi talked—and talked, and talked. The U.S. Department of Justice sat up and took notice. Soon it became clear that almost any city which had been victimized by organized crime—and what city had not—was intensely interested in Joe Valachi's story.

Here, for the first time, was a new name for the legendary Mafia—the Cosa Nostra (which translates from Italian into "this thing of ours"). And the man who put in yeoman service as a soldier in the ranks of organized crime started spelling out names, dates, places and revealing with striking and dramatic detail the day-by-day workings of criminals and the lords of the underworld.

With the cooperation of the Justice Department, which concluded that Valachi's story was an important contribution to widespread understanding of the nature and operation of organized crime, Peter Maas, a writer who was the first to publish reports about Valachi's confessions, was selected to edit Valachi's notes. Maas was the only journalist to have interviewed Valachi, being kept in maximum security to protect him from mob vengeance. In all Maas had 22 interviews with Valachi. But political pressure was applied to halt publication of a book. Italian-American groups voiced objections to the detailing of a sordid story which included so many men of Italian-sounding names and Italian lineage.

But Maas went to court and got a ruling that he could publish a third-person book, as he has, rather than the first-person book originally planned.

While some may argue that the high episodes of Valachi's story have been printed periodically, the impact of this book is undeniable.

It may cause the citizenry to ask again what has been done about the Cosa Nostra—and a search may ensue to bring imaginative and productive action against organized crime.

Mirrors New Society

THEY. By Marya Mannes. Doubleday. $4.95.

What would happen if "They"—the younger people—were to take over America? On this theme Miss Mannes has constructed a challenging examination of the basic values of present day society.

The narrative takes a look backward from somewhere around the 1980s. An American President has gotten elected on a "law and order" platform and nearly plunged the nation into war.

So the younger generation revolts and seizes the government. Under the guise of "protecting" their elders, they set up rules—compulsory retirement at 50, then exile—even from their children and grandchildren—in special "communities." At no later than 65 (earlier, if they developed serious ailments) they were given the choice of suicide or extermination.

Life in Exile

This story is about a little group of exiles who have been given special permission to live in an old house on the northeast shore of America. The exiles include one former painter, two musicians (serious and popular), a woman writer (who records their story) and an earth-mother type.

The little group tries to figure out what really happened to their former world; tries to evaluate the aims of the young "barbarians;" and argues about the articles of faith that they would like to leave behind.

So, by means of this underground document contributed by the doomed aged, we have a fantasy for the intellectual mind. The novel is a sharp, penetrating view—through a maze of mirrors—of contemporary society.

Sagan's Seventh

The Heart Keeper by Francoise Sagan Dutton $3.95: In her seventh novel Miss Sagan still sticks to the love theme that runs through all her novels. But this is the platonic love of a handsome young man for a 45-year-old woman.

The setting is Hollywood and the action begins when the young Lewis, high on LSD, is almost run down by Dorothy and her current lover Paul in their speeding car.

Lewis turns out to be a strange being in his alienation from life and his complete devotion to Dorothy. An aura of mystery is skillfully created which is heightened by several murders.

Who is Lewis and what is his game? We find out in the end when Paul and Dorothy get married and find they are stuck with Lewis indefinitely.

Miss Sagan tells her fantastic stories with a deceptive simplicity that makes them quite believable and always entertaining.

Using Camera As Historian

American Album, rare photographs collected by the editors of American Heritage Simon and Schuster, $17.50: 326 photographs from 1839 to World War I.

The editors say that "the camera is a magnificent historian." Then they present 326 black and white photographs over 352 pages to prove the point.

The collection runs from the first-known daguerreotype taken in America in 1839 through glass plates and into techniques of the early 20th Century.

The book is not pretentious. The editors do not try to present a history book or commentary on styles as they progressed. They merely present the photographs. Some don't have much of an explanation since the editors didn't find one attached when they dug up the work; little matter since most pictures speak for themselves.

First Efforts

The huge volume is divided into eight sections, from "when Nothing Moved," depicting the first effort at photography, through three sections on the West and the battle of settle it, "Rural America," "The Big City" and then some "just plain pictures."

What was more natural than four youngsters monkeying around at a water pump on Page 172 or more tragic than the San Francisco earthquake of 1906, preserved on Pages 236-7?

Some of the western photos are of the "worth a thousand words" variety. So are some of the city life shots, from the teeming immigrant-packed slums of New York to the shanty section of Washington, D.C.

National Theatre Doing Twain Classic, 'Connecticut Yankee'

The National Theatre Company, a professional company touring the eastern section of the U. S., will present a Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court at Mount Saint Mary College Aquinas Hall Theatre on Saturday, Jan. 18 at 2:15 p. m. This musical adaptation of Mark Twain's classic is under the auspices of the Cultural Centre, on the Newburgh campus.

This company began five seasons ago when Barry Weissler and Fran Waller, now co-producers of the company, organized to bring more professional theatre directly to school age youth.

Actors in the company are all professional with training and experience in all the media, especially in classical theatre. Most of them have worked in the various Shakespeare festivals, including the Stratford and New York Shakespeare Festival. This company is well-known to Newburgh area residents after last season's productions of Treasure Island. Two thousand school children were transported to Cultural Centre through the co-operation of schools, teachers and administrators to see that play.

The magical world of A Connecticut Yankee will be brought to life in the Jan. 18 show. Transported back in time to the 6th century and King Arthur's Court, the Connecticut Yankee (the Boss) meets Clarence the page, Sir Sagamor, Sandy who becomes his wife, Merlin the magician and King Arthur and his knights. The Cultural Centre Guild selected this production because of its educational value, with a view toward incorporating this Mark Twain story into classroom and youth activities. For further information contact the Cultural Centre office, 10 a. m. to 12 noon and 1 to 3 p. m. Group arrangements are invited.

Painting Could Be Vanderlyn's

An oil painting that captures the colonial charm of Kingston's past and that is thought to be the work of the famed John Vanderlyn, early Kingston painter, has recently been hung in the lobby of Kingston Trust Company, corner of Fair and Main Streets.

The painting, picturing the head office of Kingston Trust Company, is being attributed to Vanderlyn, one of America's earliest and internationally acclaimed portrait and landscape artists, because of a yellowed notation uncovered on the reverse side.

Thought to have been painted about 1842, it shows the local bank building during that period when white picket fences and hitching posts surrounded its site. Also on the canvas, recently restored to its original coloring and beauty by a professional craftsman, are phaetons and carriages of the period, drawn by spirited horses and approaching the bank corner from several directions.

Old records tell us that General Joseph S. Smith, first cashier of the bank, supervised the building of the edifice and that it was completed just prior to 1842. The original building was of Grecian style architecture, of the massive Doric type, featured two large columns at the entrance, and is described as similar to the Temple of Theseus at Athens. Over the years, as improvements have been made to the building, the stately architecture has been carefully followed.

George Rusk, president of Kingston Trust, said this week that the restored painting out of the past has been hung in the bank's lobby for the enjoyment of visitors and customers. It should appeal particularly to area students of history and the arts, as well as all who have an association with the bank, and many should find pleasure in viewing this unusual work of the city's colonial era.

TONY CURTIS, with nose appropriately enlarged, plays Albert DeSalvo, the real life Massachusetts husband and father who managed to murder 13 women before his life of crime ended in a mental institution. DeSalvo's story is told in "The Boston Strangler," currently playing at the Community Theatre here.

PATRICIA NEAL stars in "The Subject Was Roses," as a wife and mother of a youthful Army veteran, who tries to recapture some of the youth and happiness in her marriage — a marriage that has turned bitter. The film is due soon at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre.

MOVIES

Subject Was Roses

When you come away from "The Subject Was Roses," a film we saw recently in New York and which is slated to open at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre on Jan. 15, you come away remembering the glowing, beautiful performance by Patricia Neal as the embittered mother of an Irish-American family living in the Bronx.

The MGM film version of Frank D. Gilroy's play, which won the Pulitzer Prize, the New York Drama Critics Circle Award and the "Tony" Award, marks Miss Neal's first appearance on the screen since winning her Oscar for her work in "Hud." She again proves herself an incomparable actress in attempting her first work since she suffered from a near fatal series of strokes some three years ago.

But there are other fine performances in this moving and compelling drama of emotional conflicts and the need for love. Jack Albertson, who won a Tony Award as "Best Actor" for this portrayal of John Cleary, the father of the family, in the stage version, recreates his role in the film. And Martin Sheen as Timmy, the son who returns home after three years in the Army during World War II to find that things are not the same, also enacts the role he created in the original Broadway play. Both Albertson and Sheen are excellent in the movie.

Welcome Home

"Roses" starts off with Timmy's welcome home which begins with a bang with a gala night club tour of the town with his parents. But disillusionment soon sets in when he becomes aware of the discord between his parents.

A marriage in which an ebullient and ambitious young man had swept a pretty young woman off her feet has turned sour. Self-educated and hard-working John Cleary's hopes of becoming a rich man were shattered by the stock market crash. His wife, Nettie, yearning for affection from a husband who soon took her for granted, spent much of her time with her mother and her sons — mentally retarded cousin, and John turned to other women.

Most of their life now is spent in quarreling and recriminations. Perhaps one of the most memorable scenes in screen history is that one in which Nettie repulses the drunken advances of her husband and smashes a vase of roses which she had been led to believe he had tenderly bought.

With Timmy trying to make peace between his parents, Nettie knowing that things cannot change, and Timmy finally realizing that he must make a life of his own, "Roses" succeeds brilliantly in making its characters come vividly to life. These are REAL people and REAL surroundings and you become not only sympathetically interested in them but completely moved and engrossed in their individual destinies.

"The Subject Was Roses" is a vehicle worthy of any moviegoer's attention. It was, for us, a felicitous and rewarding motion picture event which must be ranked with the best that has been offered in the past year.

The Tinder Box

"The Tinder Box" comes to entrancing life as a motion picture fairy tale in Storybook Color, in matinee showings today and tomorrow at the Community Theatre. It's a feature film of the popular children's story by Hans Christian Andersen and offers youngsters humor, action, sparkling excitement and a number of delightful new songs.

Fairy tale buffs will remember that it's the story of a handsome young soldier who wins the beautiful princess with the aid of a magic tinder box which, like Aladdin's lamp, brings to its owner's assistance some pretty powerful magic. — the "magic," in this case, consists of three ferocious dogs who gently do whatever their soldier master commands them to do. They bring him copper, silver and gold treasure to make him a gentleman of wealth and leisure — and they bring him an imprisoned and sleeping princess.

This is a movie to delight the minds and hearts of kids everywhere and your youngster should definitely be treated to one of the special children's matinees today or tomorrow at 1 and 3 p.m.

Boston Strangler

Policemen come running time and time again to view the mutilated bodies of 13 women, all of whom have been mauled, obscenely violated and strangled. They are the dozen plus victims of "The Boston Strangler," a sexual pervert who, in real life, kept The Hub City in hysteria for many

Music in '68 Was All Soul, Blues and Gentle Rock

25—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, JAN. 11, 1969

ARETHA FRANKLIN — SOUL SINGER OF '68

TINY TIM — THE NOVELTY OF THE YEAR

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The word in '68 popular music was soul and the artist was Aretha Franklin. She came out with an album in March titled "Lady Soul" and nobody disputed the title.

She also made singles "Chain of Fools," "Since You've Been Gone," "Think," "The House that Jack Built," "I Say a Little Prayer" and "See Saw" and the LPs "Now" and "Aretha in Paris"—hits, every one of them.

Rock drew strongly on the blues in '68. The current three best rock group guitarists are blues-based men—Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix and Mike Bloomfield.

The Break Ups

During the year many groups broke up and the fragments often came together in other formations. The Cream (of which Clapton was a third) poured out its last drop, never playing better. Bloomfield was in the now-lowered Electric Flag. The Buddy Miles Express, headed by the former Electric Flag drummer, already is one of the top rock soul groups. Personnel changed all over; Traffic smashed up; the Kasenetz-Katz Singing Orchestra Circus includes people from the 1910 Fruitgum Co., Music Explosion and Ohio Express.

Another big wave in '68 was gentle rock. Here the writers get top billing; the decibel level is down where the singers can be heard; the melody is usually melodic, the effect sometimes downright lovely.

Simon and Garfunkel wrote the score for "The Graduate," including "Mrs. Robinson," "Honey" and "Little Green Apples," both of which went to No. 1, are by Bobby Russell of Nashville. Jim Webb of "Up, Up and Away" acclaim was nostalgically simple in "Didn't We" Also Union Gap, Steppenwolf, another oldie, "Hi-Heel Sneak" and complicated in "Mac Arthur Park."

Biggest hits of the year include "Love Is Blue," an instrumental, by Paul Mauriat; "Young Girl" by Gary Puckett and the Union Gap; "The Dock of the Bay" by Otis Redding, and "Harper Valley PTA," which sounds inspired by "The Ballad of Billie Joe."

Joplin Was Big

Girl singer most talked about was Janis Joplin, of Big Brother and the Holding Co., who comes on raw, gutsy and real and has been compared with Bessie Smith and contrasted with supercool Gracie Slick of the Jefferson Airplane. Rumors are that both may go out alone. Mama Cass recorded alone this year and did well. Mary Hopkins 16, the first discovery of the Beatles' new Apple Corps, sped to No. 1 with "Those Were the Days."

Among hottest-selling groups were the old familiar ones—Beatles, Rolling Stones, Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, Simon and Garfunkel, Temptations.

Rascals, and for the bubble gumers."

set, the 1910 Fruitgum Co., Monkees, Archies, Cowsills.

Bob Dylan brought out one LP, "John Wesley Harding," and its popularity proved he retains his strong magnetism for record buyers.

The Jimi Hendrix Experience and the Crazy World of Arthur Brown proved to be "experiences," frightening to some, sensual to others. Novelty of the year was Tiny Tim and his throwback trilling falsetto—tiptoeing through the tulips. Bill Cosby was the only comic selling big.

Mr. Country

Johnny Cash was Mr. Country of 1968 with the LP "Johnny Cash at Folsom Prison," recorded inside, and single from it, "Folsom Prison Blues." Glen Campbell continued the trend of pop-country with emphasis on honky-tonk, with "Wichita Lineman."

Jose Feliciano got his first smash with an old doors' hit, "Light My Fire," went on to sing "The National Anthem" soul style at a World Series game; (recorded it, too, of course) and got another hit with Nudes were increasingly used on album covers during the year, with the publicity focusing on front and back views of nude John Lennon and Yoko Ono on "Two Virgins." Tape cartridges continued to grow in sales. Mono records did a fadeout.

Guitarist Wes Montgomery died this year, having broadened his appeal from the jazz to the pop market. Otis Redding, who was killed in a plane crash in December 1967, stayed on the charts as records he's made kept being released, from "Dock of the Bay" at the beginning of the year to "I've Got Dreams To Remember" at the end.

Made It Twice

As the year began, "I Heard it on the Grapevine" was No. 1 as sung by Gladys Knight and the Pips. At year's end the same song was No. 1 again by Marvin Gaye.

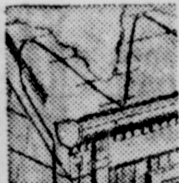

And Elvis Presley, the original launcher who socked the whole rock movement to the moon, proved he's still an active astronaut—landing "A Little Less Conversation" on the charts in December 1968.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Live music is beating faster sales tempo in many restaurants and hotels throughout the nation of late. Locally, one such example is the Governor's Tavern in the Governor Clinton Hotel, where the playing and singing of Jannine Bonne at the piano bar keeps dining customers lingering longer over their dinners.

But while such live music entertainment is an unquestioned attraction, one must remember, too, that food is the most essential thing about a restaurant. And the food at the colonially decorated Governor's Tavern is excellent. Furthermore, the desserts are as light as a feather. If, as a famous chef once said, "Dining out is a theatrical experience, but most people don't realize it," dinner at this Broadway hostelry proves his contention. Handsome, chic and comfortable with low-key lighting, the Tavern encourages relaxed, lingering meals with a menu that is short but highly selective.

Prime Ribs of Beef, king size, are available in thick, succulent slabs. Taken with a wine of excellent quality or a foaming stein of draught beer (only fifty cents), this choicest of menu items is absolutely delicious. There is also a wide choice of other types of beef such as Jumbo Filet Mignon, Steak on a Stick, Chopped Sirloin Steak with Wine Mushroom Sauce, Stroganoff of Beef with Noodles, and Colony Broil, London Style.

The Baked Stuffed Jumbo Shrimp with drawn butter is an unbelievable bargain at $3.75. Ordered as an a la carte dinner selection, it can be had with a huge baked potato, vegetables served family style, and a crisp green salad with spicy dressing. And, rest assured, the shrimp are indeed jumbo-sized.

Another of our favorites at the Tavern is the Boneless Breast of Chicken Cordon Bleu, which comes in generous quantity, is liberally laced with fine pieces of white meat chicken, and costs only $3.50. It's found under the "Wild Birds & Others" section of the menu, which also features roast stuffed New York Tom Turkey, roast Long Island duckling with orange sauce, and breast of Rock Cornish Game Hen.

A word must be said for the desserts for those with a sweet tooth. Among the distinctive and highly recommended sweets are the homemade strawberry shortcake, the pecan pie with whipped cream, the home baked pies, the blueberry tart with whipped cream, the chocolate walnut sundae, and the pudding du jour.

Among other attractions at the Tavern are the "Groaning Board," piled high with relishes and appetizers and available to those who wish to help themselves.

Dinner is served from 6 to 10 p.m. and Jannine Bonne entertains at the piano bar every night except Sunday and Monday. And bear in mind that the Tavern also serves a superior breakfast from 7 to 11 a.m., and a fabulous lunch from 12 noon to 2 p.m.

Rum's Role

Rum made from molasses played a significant economic role in the colonies during prerevolutionary days. In 1764, the colony of Rhode Island alone had more than 30 rum distilleries.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Hurleyites Judy and Mort Kamen ended the old year right; no disagreements in that family. Judy wanted to stay home; Mort wanted to go out — or was it the other way 'round? Anyway, they smoked the peacepipe and did both.

Judy met us at the door in an ultra-chic red velvet pants ensemble that spelled holiday to the nth degree. But this was her EARLY-evening outfit; later she donned silver stockings with all etceteras and trotted to Ahavath Israel. We do mean trot; you knew she had been taking up horseback-riding?

Our wandering orbs rested upon Mrs. Herb Siller, draped in the most fabulous, full length fur we've ever seen. Bert Cook was there with wife Chris, who looked like a Titian portrait in pale blue with white lace. IBM was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Gellen, as well as Stanley Plasker and Gloria, who wore popular culottes with tunic top.

Saw Mr. and Mrs. Hy Rosenberg; executive director of Jewish Community Center, Stanley King and missus; UCCC's George Erbsstein and gracious wife whom we seem to meet every New Year's Eve — in '68 it was at Stan and Audrey London's.

Bob Schneller was creating an image with "very now" sideburns — like "wow" — and wife Lore's natural charm was contagious. Talked with Dr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sachs, who was stunning in low-back shimmering culottes, spotted Style Fabric's Leo Kay; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dubin of French Dye Works. Milt's well known in the card arena for his "bridge" finesse.

Names ran the gamut from Cooks to Kings and outfits ranged from contemporary to out of sight — in a "lovely" sort of way. Was heartbroken though 'cause Judy and Don MacIsaac didn't make it, but then the storm and all.

Adrian Kaplan had quite a thing going at Salvucci's Tuesday night. When we stopped to chat, three gentlemen in his party — John Larkin, Judge Mino and Larry Quilty, by name — gave us a rousing reception. Rather a "sock it to 'em" type, if you get the picture. Tried "friendly persuasion" to get them to keep their cool, but they weren't having any. So, when John asked if we'd "put Adrian in Potpourri," we threatened to "roast" John in the "pot" part of "Potpourri," if he didn't behave. Then he saw the light and became docile as a little lamb. However, Larry Quilty was something else again.

The same night we saw the George Yerrys with Lou Kayes, Ike Jacobsons, Hess Kayes, Dr. Silk and wife, Tommy Davitt was there; Sonny Barnes party; George Schonger of fire-felled White Horse Inn; politician Jack Finch and his lovely Sharon. Helen Coons brought us up-to-date with the happenings of mutual comrades, Kitty and Harold Middaugh.

Looked for Kingston's Felix Nettleton at Liguori's but had weather kept him home. Was surprised 'bout that since he's got more get-up-and-go than any great, great grandfather we know. We did see Hank Cragen and Johnny DeCicco with their blonde better-halves, both looking glamorous in their furs and finery.

1 Paltz Is Nominated, Actors Will Perform in 'Tent Theatre'

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington will be historic has announced a new design in Ford's.

Unique in the design of the tent theatres to be put to use this April and May, when the ten outstanding productions of the first American College Theatre Festival just completed on campus stages across the country, come to Washington. The design was initiated by the Smithsonian's Division of Performing Arts and is the work of sculptor William Moss of HDO Productions. The temporary structure will stand on the spacious Mall between the Smithsonian buildings.

The American College Theatre Festival was sponsored by American Airlines, the Friends of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Smithsonian Institution, and was produced by the American Educational Theatre Association and the American National Theatre and Academy. The Smithsonian is providing the two theatres required for upcoming Festival production in Washington. The second theatre to house the college productions

State University College at New Paltz was among the 183 colleges participating in the Festival and which presented their productions during October, November, and December, for screening by Festival judges. Three productions from each of the thirteen regions will be nominated to the Central Committee. The ten colleges selected to come to Washington will each spend six days in the capital with time for rehearsals, three public performances and seminars. The Festival will take place April 28 through May 12.

Kingston Composer Joins BMI

William L. Coley of Kingston, and John Herald of Woodstock, have become writer affiliate of BMI (Broadcast Music, Inc.), one of the country's major music licensing organizations.

More than 17,000 writers and 8,000 publishers are currently affiliated with BMI. Their works include much of the most successful contemporary popular music and music of the concert hall, as well as such other American expressions as jazz, folk, country, rock, gospel, rhythm and blues and the experimental music of the avant-garde.

The BMI repertoire includes the most important and most performed works of many of the major figures of the 20th century, including that of 10 years, eight of the coveted Pulitzer Prize winners. The new contract will make available music by such distinguished concert composers as Cowell, DeFalla, Harris, Henze, Hindemith, Hovhaness, Ives, Krenek, Martin, Martinu, Milhaud, Orff, Piston, Puccini, Respighi, Riegger, Schuller, Sessions, Stravinsky, Surinach, Turina and Villa-Lobos. Also available under the BMI contract is contemporary music of composers and publishers from around the world. Among

In the field of musical theater, BMI licenses the music of such successes as "Cabaret," "Fiddler on the Roof," "She Loves Me," "The Happy Time," "Oliver!" "Stop the World—I Want to get Off," "Jacques Brel Is Alive in Paris" and many others.

Much of the finest film music being composed today is licensed by BMI. Half of the 80 films having had the largest box-office grosses during the past several years contain BMI music. During the past eight years, eight of the coveted Oscars of the Motion Picture Academy have been presented to BMI music, involving the films "Never on Sunday," "Lawrence of Arabia," "Tom Jones," "Mary Poppins," "Born Free" and "Doctor Dolittle." Among current successful films with BMI music are "2001: A Space Odyssey," "The Graduate," "Tom Sir, With Love," "Cool Hand Luke," "Planet of the Apes," "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and others.

Poetry by Winn

O. Howard Winn, head of the Department of English and Humanities at Dutchess Community College, has poetry appearing in three recent issues of university magazines.

"The Barat Review," published by Barat College, Lake Forest, Ill., contains a poem entitled "Four Picture Sequence of Desire and Love."

"Descant," published at Texas Christian University by the University Press, contains two poems, "Exodus" and "Weather Report."

"Discourse—A Review of the Liberal Arts," published by Concordia College, Moorhead, Minn., contains a poem commenting on the emerging nations of Africa, "The Burden."

Youth and Music

There are now more than 16,000,000 school-age instrumentalists in the U.S., compared to only 3,000,000 in 1950. Eighty-five per cent of the nation's school systems provide rhythm-band training in kindergarten, to introduce children to instrumental music. And there has been a significant expansion of almost all types of musical groups (orchestra, band, "stage" band) at the elementary level. Elementary and secondary schools in this country are said to have more than 68,000 instrumental music organizations, including 7,000 orchestras and 50,000 marching and concert bands (in addition to 11,000 supervised "stage" (or jazz bands). Bands and orchestras have doubled since World War II, as a result of interest generated through classroom music instruction. In addition, these figures do not include the numerous ensemble, chamber and folk music groups found in many school music programs or the numerous combos formed by students on their own time.

Sky High Dining

Visitors to Calgary, Alberta, can now dine with a 360 degree panoramic view of the city and the nearby Rocky Mountains. The Husky Tower, which rises 626 feet above the city, includes a revolving 200-seat restaurant. Above the restaurant a mezzanine skybubble encloses an observation terrace, a cocktail lounge and a snack bar.

The bright orange tower centers Palliser Square which, when completed, will include a high rise office-apartment complex, a transportation center and shopping facilities.

THE YOUNG SOLDIER here of "The Tinder Box" confronts a ferocious dog in a treasure-filled cavern in the film for youngsters based on a Hans Christian Andersen tale. The movie is playing matinees only today and tomorrow at 1 and 3 p.m. at Walter Reade's Community Theatre months, as police failed to find a single usable clue to the identity of the madman who gained entrance to apartments with ease and ludicrously arranged the bodies of the women he mauled and murdered.

This film based on Gerold Frank's nonfiction bestseller and shot mostly on location in Boston, is now playing at Walter Reade's Community Theatre. Frank's book was an excellent study of a man in mental anguish (the real life Albert DeSalvo, a schizophrenic husband and father of two children). It was also a fine piece of journalistic reporting that spoke eloquently for its depth of research and dedication to detail; and a sometimes treatise on the benefits to be derived by unfortunate mental misfits through psychiatric care and treatment.

The movie lacks much of the taste and prose decency, the journalistic judgment and insight of the book. Where the written word fascinated, interested, absorbed and intrigued, the mindless and obscene ferocity of DeSalvo detailed on film often nauseates, repels, upsets repulses.

The question, then, is whether Hollywood could possibly make a movie about the strangulation of 13 women without having it emerge as a leering exploitation of violence? Taste and restraint would be hard to come by indeed in photographing the story of a split personality who seems more monster than human, even though he is a sick human.

Curtis Excels

The film is a true enough portrait of DeSalvo (played by Tony Curtis); shows him as a law-abiding mechanic during his normal hours. But there are the times he turns into another self, a compulsive psychopath who can kill blindly and mindlessly. Curtis gives an amazing performance, probably his best, as The Strangler — but it is not enough to save the film from its incredible voyeurism.

The movie collapses in tastelessness and violence, and a parade of homosexuals, peeping toms, nuts and fetishists does nothing to help matters — although it seems to have been inserted for humor. A man who makes love to women's handbags is no funnier to us than a self-spoken strangler who uses wine bottles and brooms to violate this victims.

Among the passages in the book which made for fascinating reading were those in which DeSalvo hallucinated during psychiatric probing. But the movie takes of this moving experience and makes of it a dull scene in which a textbook-spouting psychiatrist and brooding intellectual lawyer (Henry Fonda) grills Curtis with little subtlety and with heavy reliance on slick optical allusions.

If Curtis sometimes takes your breath away with his realistic performance, the film is too explicit in others ways to keep your stomach from churning. While we once found ourselves agreeing with F. Lee Bailey, DeSalvo's first defense attorney, that his client should not be considered a mere monster fit only for the electric chair — but should be kept alive and given psychiatric care in an effort to aid society in understanding such minds — we cannot agree that putting his story on the giant screen in full view of millions of moviegoers will help to bring about a responsible treatment of a vital sociological problem.

Bullitt

Continuing at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre through next Tuesday will be "Bullitt," still going strong in its third week there. It stars Steve McQueen as a San Francisco detective, has Robert Vaughn as his mean boss, and is pluperfect and totally smashing from one end of its highly polished and Supraslick script to the other. Throw in a couple of breathtaking chase scenes and you've got a cops and crime story that's topflight entertainment and one sets that sets a streaking pace across the celluloid. (REVIEWED AND PREVIEWED BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

NEWCOMER JACQUELINE BISSET, who was in "The Detective" with Frank Sinatra, is now a detective's girl in "Bullitt," the film which has Steve McQueen as a police lieutenant and which has been held over at the Mayfair Theatre. "Bullitt" gives way to "The Subject Was Roses" on the Mayfair's screen beginning Jan. 15.

How Well Do You Know

classifiable as a mansion, it is open to the public and — if one forgets that it is the Shrine of a late President of the United States — it is possible to look upon it as a comfortable family house, sprinkled throughout with a potpourri of treasures, mementoes and knick knacks of a large family. Everywhere are scattered the collections, and hobbies of may years and several generations.

The lower floor is a pleasing and rambling arrangement of fairly average rooms, tied together by an enormous drawing room, or library, which occupies the entire south wing. Comfort seems to have been stressed with little thought given to the genre of furnishing or the period of time involved. The one touch of magnificence is the Dresden Room where carpet, chairs and draperies are blended with the Dresden chandelier and candelabra.

Finally, a word about the Library, the depository for the papers, books and other historical material acquired by the late President. Visitors can spend hours here, poring over the portraits and candid photographs which sketch President Roosevelt's official life, both as Governor of New York and as President. The adjacent museum contains carriages and sleds used by the President's family.

(Next week the series continues with a quick look at the Vanderbilt Mansion on the Hudson and then a tour of our own Ulster County.)

Pottery and Hungarian Scenes Featured in January Exhibit

The works of Mrs. Linda Nadas and her father-in-law Joseph Nadas, a Hungarian artist, are currently on exhibit in the Mount Saint Mary College Aquinas Hall, Newburgh. Both exhibits are open to the public through the month of January during regular school hours and on the week-ends from 1-4 p.m.

Mrs. Nadas, whose pottery is on display in the lobby of Aquinas Hall, holds a Master of Fine Arts degree from New York State College of Ceramics, Alfred. Her work has been exhibited at the Gibson Gallery in Alfred and at Bethlehem Art Gallery, Salisbury Mills, N.Y.

She has taught sculpture for the Board of Cooperative Educational Services and is presently teaching adult classes in ceramics, painting, and drawing at the Washingtonville Central School and Orange County Community College.

Joseph Nadas, who still resides in Hungary, uses pastels and watercolors to depict Hungarian landscapes and city views. The collection, which is now owned by Dr. Arthur Nadas, has until recently been viewed only in his native land.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Nadas and their two daughters reside in Rock Tavern, N. Y.

Theatre Toronto's second exciting season opened at the Royal Alexandra Theatre this week with Christopher Marlowe's "Edward II". This is the first in a series of plays which will highlight the winter season of Toronto, Canada's second largest city. The plays which will change every three weeks until April will also include George Bernard Shaw's "In Good King Charles Golden Days"; "The Plebeians Rehearse the Uprising", by Gunter Grass; Carlo Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters"; and a new Canadian play, still to be announced. Running in conjunction with the Royal Alexandra season will be studio productions, seminars and lectures in Theatre Toronto's new offices at 11 Trinity Square.
